Dance Floor Falls

Woman Killed, 100 Others Hurt

CHICAGO, March 18—Three separate investigations were ordered today into the collapse of a north side dance hall floor that killed one woman and injured more than 100 St. Patrick's Day merrymakers.

Irish gaiety was turned into sudden panic last night when the third floor of the Lakeview bowling alley collapsed under the weight of the dancers and dropped the screaming couples into the billiard room on the second floor.

Investigations were ordered by the Chicago city fire and building departments, while a coroner's jury was summoned to investigate the death of Mrs. Ann Hunt, 35, a native of Galway, Ireland, and the mother of four children.

She was crushed under the debris, and her body was recovered three hours later.

THE COUPLES were dancing to the tune of "I'm Looking Over a Four Leaf Clover" when the floor gave way and the dancers fell to the floor below amid piercing screams and shrieks.

Almost simultaneously a portion of the third story ceiling dropped and piled more debris upon the squirming dancers.

More than 240 policemen and 30 ambulances and six patrol wagons participated in carrying the injured to six hospitals.

A crowd of more than 10,000 persons, many seeking relatives and friends who attended the dance, milled about the ruins and hampered the work of rescue crews.

Chicago city officials of the fire and building departments and the corporation counsel's office started an immediate investigation into the collapse. The inquest into Mrs. Hunt's death was set for later today.

Police said it was "miraculous" that only one of the dancers was killed. Fortunately, the floor of the second story housing the bowling alley and pool room held firm and prevented further injuries.

HOSPITAL attendants said their admitting rooms were jammed with injured persons.

Among those who escaped from the building was Terrace McAndrews. He said:

Soviets Plan Blocking UN Hearing On Czechs

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., March 18—The Soviet Union made plans today to block any attempted action by the United Nations on Chile's charge that Russia menaced the peace in supporting the Communist coup against Czechoslovakia.

Full-fledged debate on the issue is scheduled for Monday afternoon.

It was understood that Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko and the Ukrainian delegate avoided a walkout Wednesday from the Security Council meeting on expressed orders from Generalissimo Stalin and Foreign Minister Molotov.

Both Soviet delegates were ordered to be on hand for all sessions dealing with Chile's charges.

The issue of Russian expansion and Communist encroachment may be headed for a more general debate than had been anticipated. It is up to the non-Soviet members of the council to present convincing proof that Russia violated Czech sovereignty and make Chile's charges stick.

THE FIRST TEST of strength between the two factions may come on Monday afternoon with efforts to have Jan Papanek seated at the council table. Gromyko already has branded him a "traitor" and a disqualified individual.

A great deal depends henceforth on the United States. Any vigorous leadership by U. S. Representative Warren R. Austin in exposing the entire conflict between the East and West will be given equal support by the other powers. Any contrary tendency will rapidly confine the debate to a "moral indignation" gesture by the Western powers over Czechoslovakia.

Student Held After Shooting In Dormitory

BOWLING GREEN, March 18—A lie-detector test was planned today for James Singler, 21-year-old Bowling Green State university freshman, who admittedly fatally shot a fellow student last night.

Wood County Prosecutor Floyd A. Coller said the youth reportedly told authorities he accidentally fired the bullet that killed Charles Wenzel, 18, of Centerburg after a radio mystery program "made me think of a gun."

Coller said no charges have been placed against Singler. Coroner H. W. Mannhartt was to hold an inquest today.

Coller reported that Singler told him that he took a Belgian Browning automatic pistol from the top bureau drawer of his roommate. Dean McKinnon of Bethesda, Md. He said he didn't know the gun was loaded. He stated:

"I TOOK the gun in my left hand and carried it to the window. . .I sat down and took an imaginary pot-shot and pulled the trigger."

The bullet broke the window in Wenzel's room in a single-story wooden annex about 140 feet away, crashed into the back of the boy's head, ripped out through his forehead and lodged in one of the bunks.

Wenzel's roommate, Jerry Weiss, 18, Cleveland, said the stricken student slumped to the floor without a cry.

Singler told Coller he put the gun back in the drawer and, not knowing he had shot anyone, "I went into the next room and asked the fellows there if they had heard anything. They said they heard something like a tire blowing out."

Columbus Eyes Produce Mart

COLUMBUS, March 18—A five-member committee started making plans today for Columbus' long - projected wholesale produce market.

The first duty of the committee, selected Tuesday by a joint committee representing the city and county planning commissions, is to appraise all the property in the market district.

Those named were Dr. Charles W. Hauck, Ohio State university rural economist, chairman; Clifford R. Fisher, president of William M. Fisher and Sons, produce wholesalers; Henry C. Wollom, realtor; Joseph A. Sugar, Sugar Produce Co., and Harrison M. Sayre, president of the American Education Press.

MILWAUKEE, March 18—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's views on agricultural problems were outlined for the American farmer today in a cablegram to a Milwaukee dairy executive.

The famous war-time commander who recently announced he would accept a presidential nomination "if called by the people" declared he favors:

Stablilized farm prices, soil conservation and "protection of the farmer in his dealings with processors and distributors."

MacArthur's cablegram was sent to Gavin McKerrow, co-operative dairy executive.

300 Coal Miners Dead In Blast

TRIESTE, March 18—An official Yugoslav communique announced today that some 300 coal miners were killed and hundreds injured when gas exploded in a mine in the Arsa district, formerly Italian territory.

The announcement said that German prisoners of war and Italian laborers were among the victims.

Rescue workers were reported still burrowing through the debris in search of men still missing.

GOP May Broaden Truman Program

Draft Probable, But Not UMT; Income Tax Cut Still On Docket

WASHINGTON, March 18—The Republican Congress appears eager today to add some items of its own to President Truman's program for protecting Democratic nations against Russia's "internal and external" aggression.

GOP leaders seemed favorably inclined toward enactment of the President's request for a new selective service act.

The peacetime draft law probably will be limited to the 19 to 25 age brackets. It may be limited to a single year for the sole purpose of bringing America's three armed services up to their full authorized peacetime strength. This would hold the draft to about 300,000 youths, less voluntary enlistments.

The Republicans, however, are determined to create the greatest air force in the world — one far superior to Russia's—as America's first line of defense. Mr. Truman made no such recommendation.

GOP CHIEFS also are prepared to enact their tax reduction bill, possibly in a slightly reduced form, despite extra expenditures for national defense and aid to Democratic governments.

The present GOP legislative program, some of it initiated by the President and some of it by Republicans, seems to be:

1. Prompt passage of the European Reçovery Program, calling for $5.3 billion of economic aid to 16 European Democracies opposed to Communism.

2. Direct military aid to Tur-

Truman Attacks Wallace, His Commie Backers

NEW YORK, March 18—The label of "Communist" was fixed today on backers of Henry Wallace by President Truman in a speech asserting he would not accept their political support even if it meant his own defeat.

The President told a New York audience last night:

"This is the day of high prices, but any price for Wallace and his Communists is too much of a price to pay. If this is to be the price of victory, I recommend defeat."

Mr. Truman's bitter attack was a surprise interpolation in a prepared speech warning Americans that the dangers of Communism bring this country to risks "perhaps greater than this country has ever been asked to assume."

Less than half an hour after Truman's speech Wallace demanded radio time to reply to the President's "personal and political attacks."

Wallace will reply to Truman's address to congress at 10:45 p. m. (EST) tonight over the ABC network.

Truman spoke at a dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in New York, elaborating the shift in his foreign policy which he had announced to congress earlier in the day.

The banquet guests also heard Francis Cardinal Spellman endorse Universal Military Training and deliver a scathing indictment of the Soviet Union.

TAMPA, Fla., March 18—Ten Army men were killed today and four others survived when a B-29 Superfortress crashed and burned during a landing attempt at Macdill Army Air Field near here.

The four-engined bomber, enroute from its Spokane, Wash., base to Tampa, crashed on the landing field in a heavy ground fog as it made its final approach to the runway.

The cause of the accident was not immediately determined but Macdill officials said the plane "just seemed to conk out and drop" as it made the landing approach.

'Teaser' Wins Jurist's Favor

NEW YORK, March 18—Georgia Sother, the gal they call the gorgeous strip-teaser extraordinary, had official court sanction today to travel her own "bumpy" way of life despite police protests that her gyrations be modified.

Police Commissioner Arther Wallander had refused to issue Georgia a new permit to entertain in her nightclub spot after officers who witnessed her routine said her "bumps and grinds" were too emphatic.

Judge Morris Eder's decision reversed the police ban which was imposed with a recommendation that if she was to continue her act the "bumps and grinds" routine would have to be reduced by 10 percent.

AT THE SWEDISH ARMY'S biggest maneuvers of the year, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf (left) and Prince Bertil, both officers in the army, check a map near Lake Wetter. The military exercises took on added significance with the report that Sweden, as well as Norway and Denmark, may be invited to join the European western bloc of Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg.

Forrestal Would Exempt Vets In Proposed Draft

WASHINGTON, March 18—Secretary of Defense Forrestal told Congress today that World War II veterans would be exempt from the temporary draft asked by President Truman and Army Secretary Royall said the Selective Service call would be for "not less than two years" duty.

Forrestal said the draft program would have a reservoir of about three million men beyond the Universal Military Training age limits—or roughly between 19 and 25.

The defense secretary declared that the "fundamental basis" of the draft plan was that it would not affect veterans of World War II.

The cabinet officer also disclosed that he will ask an increase in the authorized strength of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

THE DEFENSE chief said he has not yet determined how large an addition he will request for the regular services.

Present armed service authorized strength is one million, 300 thousand men.

Forrestal made the announcement when he appeared before the Senate armed services committee in support of President Truman's request for temporary resumption of Selective Service and Universal Military Training.

The Regular Army establishment today is 350,000 below the existing authorized strength, he testified.

Without mentioning Russia or Communism by name, Forrestal made it clear that it has been Soviet aggression which upset the time-table and made a revision in the strength of the standing forces necessary.

'Pauper's Oath' Action Stalled

COLUMBUS, March 18 — Action on a proposal to end the "pauper's oath" now required of applicants for poor relief was postponed today until the next meeting by the Ohio Welfare and Relief Directors Association.

Lewis Hit As Cause Of Moves

Mediator Stalled In UMW Dispute

WASHINGTON, March 18—The government moved on two fronts today to conserve rapidly decreasing coal supplies as a result of the walkout of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

The Office of Defense Transportation ordered a 25 percent reduction in coal-burning passenger train service and Secretary of Commerce Harriman clamped an embargo on all shipments of bituminous coal "to protect dwindling supplies in the United States."

The reduction in passenger service is effective at midnight Sunday.

The coal embargo will go into effect at midnight Monday and will halt the distribution of bituminous coal to all foreign nations excepting Canada.

A 25 percent reduction in the operation of coal-burning passenger trains will be based on mileage operations of March 1, the ODT said.

THE COAL STRIKE, plus "exceedingly low railroad coal stocks" was responsible for the order.

Announcing the coal embargo, the Commerce department placed the blame squarely on the walkout of the soft coal miners.

The department said that coal in transit or on docks and in ships will be allowed to leave the country.

The embargo will be lifted when coal-mining resumes on a large scale and domestic supplies which will dwindle during the strikes are replenished, the department said.

The ODT declared railroad coal stocks are considerably lower than they have been on previous occasions when mine output was stopped by strike action.

Federation Mediation Director Cyrus Ching, seeking a solution to the walkout of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, conferred for an hour with Ezra Van Horn, mine operators' representative.

NEITHER Ching nor Van Horn would comment on results of the conference.

Ching's next move was a luncheon conference with Lewis, to explore the union's side of the pension dispute which led to the mine shutdown.

The ODT order would:

1. Prohibit special passenger trains if coal burning locomotives are required.

2. Ban the operation of circus trains, carnival trains and other entertainment carriers.

3. Ban the substitution of other than coal burning locomotives for the ordered reduction.

4. Prohibit the accumulation of mileage reduction in excess of 25 percent used for special passenger train operation.

The agency authorized each railroad to cancel passenger reservations and take what-

Draft In Ohio Possible In 2 To 3 Months

COLUMBUS, March 18—Ohio's 330 draft boards could begin to operate again if necessary in two to three months.

Adj. Gen. Chester W. Goble, wartime director of Selective Service in Ohio, said the organization would be set up in 60 to 90 days. His estimate followed President Truman's proposal to Congress for a temporary draft law.

Goble said time required would depend on how many of the old members would consent to serve again. Each board had five members.

In Washington, military officials estimated that America's armed services can be brought up to full authorized strength by drafting approximately 300,000 men.

Following the president's request for a temporary draft, the Office of Defense also figured that there are three million men between the ages of 18 and 25 who would be available for Selective Service.

THE ARMY is most desperately in need of the draftees asked by President Truman. With current authorized strength of 669,000 officers and men, it has 550,000. Officials say manpower shortage has affected efficiency of U. S. forces in occupation areas, and overseas commanders are not getting the number

Weather forecasters said that the rain would continue through tomorrow and that clearing and cooler conditions were probable by Saturday.

The mercury was to climb to between 50 and 60 degrees today and stay well above freezing tonight. Similar warm temperatures were forecast for tomorrow.

Youth Welfare Fund To Get Money Taken In At Circus Day, April 17

It will be a great day for the lollypop set and many adults, too, for Circus Day is just around the corner.

Mills Brothers' three-ring circus will open its 1948 season April 17 on the Pickaway Fairgrounds under the auspices of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce to raise money for the latter group's youth welfare fund.

Chamber officials said Thursday the money collected by his group from advance ticket sales will go directly into the fund in an effort to combat juvenile delinquency in Circleville.

First tickets will go on sale this weekend with all members cooperating. Ducats also may be purchased from any member Chamber of Commerce store in town.

Price was set at $1.20 for adults and 60 cents for children.

April 10, Mills Bros. Circus will set up its familiar red and yellow ticket wagon in the center of town in an effort to sell out the 3,000 capacity at both performances in the afternoon and evening.

Candy cones, sugar-covered apples, peanuts, fast-tongued barkers and trick dogs all will be part of the big show in addition to numerous specialty acts recently imported from Italy and Brazil.

Featured will be the Medini Trio on unsupported ladders; Bruna and Yolanda in a head balancing specialty; Hernadines high wire walkers from Brazil; Joe Dobas and Co., in a high perch act.

Virginia Noels, the fearless circus lady, will permit herself to be carried around the arena with her head in the jaws of Burma, the trick elephant.

Prancing horses garbed in tassels and bright red harnesses speckled with spanglers will parade through the rings while jugglers, ball balancers and aerial artists perform in true circus style.

This will be Mills Bros. first performance of the year. A small part of the organization has been in Winter quarters at the Fairgrounds while the remainder spent the season in Florida.

But Spring days are finding the circus people tossing away their coveralls, muddy boots and sweatshirts for the uniformed pomp and blaring horns, the pink lemonade and the color of the world of sawdust.

Banners are beginning to flutter again, bright paint is being applied to weather-worn spots all in preparation for opening day April 17.

Present armed service authorized strength is one million, 300 thousand men.

Forrestal made the announcement when he appeared before the Senate armed services committee in support of President Truman's request for temporary resumption of Selective Service and Universal Military Training.

The Regular Army establishment today is 350,000 below the existing authorized strength, he testified.

Without mentioning Russia or Communism by name, Forrestal made it clear that it has been Soviet aggression which upset the time-table and made a revision in the strength of the standing forces necessary.

'Pauper's Oath' Action Stalled

COLUMBUS, March 18 — Action on a proposal to end the "pauper's oath" now required of applicants for poor relief was postponed today until the next meeting by the Ohio Welfare and Relief Directors Association.

President John J. Schaffer said the group's executive committee was unable to agree on an amendment to the state law to abolish the pauper's oath. He pointed out, however, that the oath was not required on applications for other types of relief.

Draft In Ohio Possible In 2 To 3 Months

COLUMBUS, March 18—Ohio's 330 draft boards could begin to operate again if necessary in two to three months.

Adj. Gen. Chester W. Goble, wartime director of Selective Service in Ohio, said the organization would be set up in 60 to 90 days. His estimate followed President Truman's proposal to Congress for a temporary draft law.

Goble said time required would depend on how many of the old members would consent to serve again. Each board had five members.

In Washington, military officials estimated that America's armed services can be brought up to full authorized strength by drafting approximately 300,000 men.

Following the president's request for a temporary draft, the Office of Defense also figured that there are three million men between the ages of 18 and 25 who would be available for Selective Service.

THE ARMY is most desperately in need of the draftees asked by President Truman. With current authorized strength of 669,000 officers and men, it has 550,000. Officials say manpower shortage has affected efficiency of U. S. forces in occupation areas, and overseas commanders are not getting the number

Lewis Hit As Cause Of Moves

Mediator Stalled In UMW Dispute

WASHINGTON, March 18—The government moved on two fronts today to conserve rapidly decreasing coal supplies as a result of the walkout of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

The Office of Defense Transportation ordered a 25 percent reduction in coal-burning passenger train service and Secretary of Commerce Harriman clamped an embargo on all shipments of bituminous coal "to protect dwindling supplies in the United States."

The reduction in passenger service is effective at midnight Sunday.

The coal embargo will go into effect at midnight Monday and will halt the distribution of bituminous coal to all foreign nations excepting Canada.

A 25 percent reduction in the operation of coal-burning passenger trains will be based on mileage operations of March 1, the ODT said.

THE COAL STRIKE, plus "exceedingly low railroad coal stocks" was responsible for the order.

Announcing the coal embargo, the Commerce department placed the blame squarely on the walkout of the soft coal miners.

The department said that coal in transit or on docks and in ships will be allowed to leave the country.

The embargo will be lifted when coal-mining resumes on a large scale and domestic supplies which will dwindle during the strikes are replenished, the department said.

The ODT declared railroad coal stocks are considerably lower than they have been on previous occasions when mine output was stopped by strike action.

Federation Mediation Director Cyrus Ching, seeking a solution to the walkout of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers, conferred for an hour with Ezra Van Horn, mine operators' representative.

NEITHER Ching nor Van Horn would comment on results of the conference.

Ching's next move was a luncheon conference with Lewis, to explore the union's side of the pension dispute which led to the mine shutdown.

The ODT order would:

1. Prohibit special passenger trains if coal burning locomotives are required.

2. Ban the operation of circus trains, carnival trains and other entertainment carriers.

3. Ban the substitution of other than coal burning locomotives for the ordered reduction.

4. Prohibit the accumulation of mileage reduction in excess of 25 percent used for special passenger train operation.

The agency authorized each railroad to cancel passenger reservations and take what-

Rain Expected To Cool State

By International News Service

The Ohio weather was turning warm and cloudy today, with rain expected to begin in the southern portion early tonight and extend into the northern area by tomorrow morning.

Weather forecasters said that the rain would continue through tomorrow and that clearing and cooler conditions were probable by Saturday.

The mercury was to climb to between 50 and 60 degrees today and stay well above freezing tonight. Similar warm temperatures were forecast for tomorrow.

The state department of highways reported that high water still is keeping closed State Routes 146 in Guernsey County from Pleasant City to junction of Route 672 and 335 in Pike County one and a half miles east of Omega.

Youth Welfare Fund To Get Money Taken In At Circus Day, April 17

It will be a great day for the lollypop set and many adults, too, for Circus Day is just around the corner.

Mills Brothers' three-ring circus will open its 1948 season April 17 on the Pickaway Fairgrounds under the auspices of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce to raise money for the latter group's youth welfare fund.

Chamber officials said Thursday the money collected by his group from advance ticket sales will go directly into the fund in an effort to combat juvenile delinquency in Circleville.

First tickets will go on sale this weekend with all members cooperating. Ducats also may be purchased from any member Chamber of Commerce store in town.

Price was set at $1.20 for adults and 60 cents for children.

April 10, Mills Bros. Circus will set up its familiar red and yellow ticket wagon in the center of town in an effort to sell out the 3,000 capacity at both performances in the afternoon and evening.

Candy cones, sugar-covered apples, peanuts, fast-tongued barkers and trick dogs all will be part of the big show in addition to numerous specialty acts recently imported from Italy and Brazil.

Featured will be the Medini Trio on unsupported ladders; Bruna and Yolanda in a head balancing specialty; Hernadines high wire walkers from Brazil; Joe Dobas and Co., in a high perch act.

Virginia Noels, the fearless circus lady, will permit herself to be carried around the arena with her head in the jaws of Burma, the trick elephant.

Prancing horses garbed in tassels and bright red harnesses speckled with spanglers will parade through the rings while jugglers, ball balancers and aerial artists perform in true circus style.

This will be Mills Bros. first performance of the year. A small part of the organization has been in Winter quarters at the Fairgrounds while the remainder spent the season in Florida.

But Spring days are finding the circus people tossing away their coveralls, muddy boots and sweatshirts for the uniformed pomp and blaring horns, the pink lemonade and the color of the world of sawdust.

Banners are beginning to flutter again, bright paint is being applied to weather-worn spots all in preparation for opening day April 17.

key, Greece and China, to be attached to the economic aid bill. Mr. Truman did not ask for this in Wednesday's address.

3. Early passage of the GOP tax reduction bill, although it may be reduced to $4 billion. This figure is recommended by Democratic supporters who would help override a Truman veto.

4. Enactment of a new draft law, within the age groups of 19 to 25. There is little disposition to draft 18-year-olds as suggested by the Army or to bar former servicemen as recommended by some military leaders.

5. Side-tracking of the Universal Military Training bill for another year to await future world developments. The argument is advanced that the draft law will provide all men now needed by the armed forces and can be enlarged to meet every emergency in the future.

6. FRIENDLY consideration for any specific recommendation by the administration for direct military aid to the five Brussels pact nations (Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg). But such aid must be justified by the administration.

7. Enactment of a $2 billion increase in the administration's budget appropriation for the Air Force. This would increase Air force funds from $3.5 billion to about $5 4 billion, the sum needed to put 70 air groups in action. Both the administration's and the congressional air boards urged the 70 group air force. Mr. Truman made no such recommendation.

8. Increased appropriations for the Army and Navy, above budget recommendations, to bring their personnel up to authorized peacetime strength.

It is possible that the GOP may add 300,000 men to the army's present peacetime strength. The recruits would be trained to form a new striking force entirely separate from present overseas occupation troops.

ed that the feeling that the atomic bomb makes large armies unnecessary is a "delusion." He said:

THE SIMPLE truth is that more and more men have to be trained to meet the threat of war.

"Future wars will be indiscriminate in their targets and universal in their effects."

Forrestal emphasized that a universal trainee would "revert to the civilian reserve" upon completion of his course and would "not be liable any more than any other citizen" for future service.

Sen. Gurney, (R) S. D., Committee chairman, who opened hearings immediately after President Truman made the recommendations in his "Stop Communism" speech, declared that the United States is "defenseless" without a peacetime draft. He said:

"We can't guard any of our bases and shores with air power. We must have ground troops. The country can't stand in its present defenseless position without reserves."

AT THE SAME time, the temporary draft proposal reportedly has the support of Sen. Vandenberg, (R) Mich. Sources close to the GOP foreign policy leader said he believes that it "makes sense."

In the house, Rep. Andrews, (R) N. Y., chairman of the armed services committee, threw his weight behind the temporary draft. He predicted it could bring 800,000 youths between 20 or 21 and 26 into uniform Andrews declared draft revival must be coupled with UMT.

Several persons trapped under the wreckage made their escape by raising a portion of the fallen floor and crawling out.

Others escaped by running down the stairs as the floor sagged and fell.

Firemen said the collapse was not precipitous. The dancers merely slid down into the second floor as the third floor gave way.

ever action is necessary to carry out the order.

The ODT explained that it will issue special and general permits to meet specific needs and special emergencies which the order may create.

The result of Ching's talks may determine whether President Truman will set in motion the emergency machinery of the Taft-Hartley law that could culminate in another court injunction against Lewis and his 400,000 soft coal miners.

ONE BIG question the government would like answered is whether the current stoppage is a full-dress strike or merely a Spring "vacation" by the mine workers which Lewis might decide to terminate at an early date.

The mediation chief declined to say what proposals he made to Lewis and Van Horn, although it is believed he sounded out the parties on government-sponsored negotiations on the pension dispute that led to the strike.

At the same time, the joint congressional labor committee is awaiting full information on the controversy. Lewis and Van Horn were requested to submit the facts by tomorrow so that the group headed by Sen. Ball, (R) Minn., can determine what further steps to take. Lewis is expected to ignore the request.

of men they are asking. This is particularly true in Korea.

The Navy has an average strength for the fiscal year 1948 of 437,000, which is up to budgetary limitations but well under authorized strength of 552,000. Actually, however, the Navy today has only about 394,000 officers and men on active duty.

The Air Force also is up to its budgetary limitation with 359,000, but authorized personnel is 401,000.

Thus a draft of 276,000 men would bring the armed forces up to strength, using the Navy's average figure as a base. If the current Navy figure is used, the need is for 319,000.

Both the Air Force and the Navy would need additional funds to train more men, since they have reached their budgetary limits. The Army's budget is figured on full authorized strength.

Road Master for a new reason – Dynaflow Drive

White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

PUT your mind's eye to measuring the makings of a truly masterful car – and you certainly can't overlook this one, especially this year.

Here you find the distinction of taper-thru styling–the regal comfort of an all-coil-spring ride, now newly shielded against vibration – the Fireball action of a great straight-eight engine that boasts the quietest purr and pulse in all motordom.

Already you have reason to grant that it sets a new measure of motorcar excellence, regardless of price. Now look at something where comparison ends – at Roadmaster's Dynaflow Drive.*

For no automobile drive ever developed makes driving so effortless, yet gives you such near-miracle performance.

Here you not only drive without a clutch pedal and without manual gearshifting – but also without any break in your Roadmaster's gait, as it accelerates between all speeds. That is because no gears ever shift anywhere in the car – not even automatically!

Here the power plant itself does what gears used to do – responding to the touch of your toe on the treadle through all speed ranges – without trace of lag or halt or hesitation.

So though you've already decided there was no surpassing the Roadmaster's super excellence in terms of its 4400 pounds and 18 feet of top styling, luxury and power – just boost your expectations still higher.

See the Roadmaster – try Dynaflow – and you'll find more reason than ever to get your order in – with or without a car to trade.

WHAT'S DIFFERENT ABOUT DYNAFLOW DRIVE*?

To an efficient new pump (left above), Buick engineers have added a true turbine (right) and an ingenious new supercharging assembly (in hand) which produce a torque-boosting action in starting and accelerating. The result is the first device on any American passenger car which employs liquid to fill the function of both the clutch and the usual low, second and high gears. The clutch pedal is eliminated and a simple control gives you manual selection of power ranges and direction.

* Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.

Forrestal Would Exempt Vets In Proposed Draft

ed that the feeling that the atomic bomb makes large armies unnecessary is a "delusion." He said:

THE SIMPLE truth is that more and more men have to be trained to meet the threat of war. "Future wars will be indiscriminate in their targets and universal in their effects."

Forrestal emphasized that a universal trainee would "revert to the civilian reserve" upon completion of his course and would "not be liable any more than any other citizen" for future service.

Sen. Gurney, (R) S. D., Committee chairman, who opened hearings immediately after President Truman made the recommendations in his "Stop Communism" speech, declared that the United States is "defenseless" without a peacetime draft. He said:

"We can't guard any of our bases and shores with air power. We must have ground troops. The country can't stand in its present defenseless position without reserves."

AT THE SAME time, the temporary draft proposal reportedly has the support of Sen. Vandenberg, (R) Mich. Sources close to the GOP foreign policy leader said he believes that it "makes sense."

In the house, Rep. Andrews, (R) N. Y., chairman of the armed services committee, threw his weight behind the temporary draft. He predicted it could bring 800,000 youths between 20 or 21 and 26 into uniform Andrews declared draft revival must be coupled with UMT.

my partner when I felt the wall give way and I backed up, against it hoping it to hold up.

"But the floor gave way. Then my partner disappeared through the floor." McAndrews' partner was only slightly bruised.

Several persons trapped under the wreckage made their escape by raising a portion of the fallen floor and crawling out.

Others escaped by running down the stairs as the floor sagged and fell.

Firemen said the collapse was not precipitous. The dancers merely slid down into the second floor as the third floor gave way.

State Checking Court Paving

Four men from the Ohio state highway department were in Circleville Thursday measuring and figuring on the measurements of Court street, which is to be repaved from Pleasant street southward to the city limits.

City council approved the $35,000 job—$7,000 to come from city funds and the balance to be met by the state—in their session two weeks ago, and bids are to be opened soon by the highway department.

Plans call for the resurfacing job to start around July 1, the street to be paved with a two inch black top.

ever action is necessary to carry out the order.

The ODT explained that it will issue special and general permits to meet specific needs and special emergencies which the order may create.

The result of Ching's talks may determine whether President Truman will set in motion the emergency machinery of the Taft-Hartley law that could culminate in another court injunction against Lewis and his 400,000 soft coal miners.

ONE BIG question the government would like answered is whether the current stoppage is a full-dress strike or merely a Spring "vacation" by the mine workers which Lewis might decide to terminate at an early date.

The mediation chief declined to say what proposals he made to Lewis and Van Horn, although it is believed he sounded out the parties on government-sponsored negotiations on the pension dispute that led to the strike.

At the same time, the joint congressional labor committee is awaiting full information on the controversy. Lewis and Van Horn were requested to submit the facts by tomorrow so that the group headed by Sen. Ball, (R) Minn., can determine what further steps to take. Lewis is expected to ignore the request.

of men they are asking. This is particularly true in Korea.

The Navy has an average strength for the fiscal year 1948 of 437,000, which is up to budgetary limitations but well under authorized strength of 552,000. Actually, however, the Navy today has only about 394,000 officers and men on active duty.

The Air Force also is up to its budgetary limitation with 359,000, but authorized personnel is 401,000.

Thus a draft of 276,000 men would bring the armed forces up to strength, using the Navy's average figure as a base. If the current Navy figure is used, the need is for 319,000.

Both the Air Force and the Navy would need additional funds to train more men, since they have reached their budgetary limits. The Army's budget is figured on full authorized strength.

BERLIN, March 18—Brig. Gen. Telford Taylor, U. S. military prosecutor at Neurnberg, and his wife were injured today when they parachuted with six other persons from a damaged C-47 transport plane over the heart of Berlin.

The craft lost an engine soon after taking off from Berlin's huge Tempelhof air field.

Its pilot and co-pilot stayed with the plane but could not land until the load was lightened.

AFTER THE eight others aboard at the takeoff had bailed out, the pilot brought the craft safely into Gatow airfield, which lies in the British zone of occupation.

Both Gen. Taylor and his wife were taken to a hospital. She was reported to have suffered a broken leg when she came down on a housetop.

The reports said that she and an Army sergeant had been hospitalized by the Russians as they landed in the Soviet sector.

Road Master for a new reason
– Dynaflow Drive

White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

PUT your mind's eye to measuring the makings of a truly masterful car – and you certainly can't overlook this one, especially this year.

Here you find the distinction of taper-thru styling–the regal comfort of an all-coil-spring ride, now newly shielded against vibration – the Fireball action of a great straight-eight engine that boasts the quietest purr and pulse in all motordom.

Already you have reason to grant that it sets a new measure of motorcar excellence, regardless of price. Now look at something where comparison ends – at Roadmaster's Dynaflow Drive.*

For no automobile drive ever developed makes driving so effortless, yet gives you such near-miracle performance.

Here you not only drive without a clutch pedal and without manual gearshifting – but also without any break in your Roadmaster's gait, as it accelerates between all speeds. That is because no gears ever shift anywhere in the car – not even automatically!

Here the power plant itself does what gears used to do – responding to the touch of your toe on the treadle through all speed ranges – without trace of lag or halt or hesitation.

So though you've already decided there was no surpassing the Roadmaster's super excellence in terms of its 4400 pounds and 18 feet of top styling, luxury and power – just boost your expectations still higher.

See the Roadmaster – try Dynaflow – and you'll find more reason than ever to get your order in – with or without a car to trade.

WHAT'S DIFFERENT ABOUT DYNAFLOW DRIVE*?

To an efficient new pump (left above), Buick engineers have added a true turbine (right) and an ingenious new supercharging assembly (in hand) which produce a torque-boosting action in starting and accelerating. The result is the first device on any American passenger car which employs liquid to fill the function of both the clutch and the usual low, second and high gears. The clutch pedal is eliminated and a simple control gives you manual selection of power ranges and direction.

* Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.

Egg, Fruit Surplus In March Seen

Seasonal High Expected

WASHINGTON, March 18 — There are plenty of eggs all over America this month. On five million United States farms, egg production has started its seasonal upsweep. The year's peak is due this month or in April.

At least that's the work of the marketing specialists of the U. S. Deparment of Agriculture.

The department has just completed an appraisal of probable March food supplies so as to help housewives aim their purchasing power at things we've lots of, and go easier on things that are scarce.

The drive for food and feed conservation is sending unusual numbers of stewing chickens off to market. As a result, they'll be plentiful in March.

POULTRY FARMERS are saving feed by selling off all but their most efficient egg producers. A non-farm product—fish—is also recommended by the marketmen.

Dried apples have been added to the roster of abundant foods for March, joining dried peaches, figs, prunes, and raisins. The decline in export markets for fresh apples and winter pears means liberal supplies of those items.

Add citrus fruits—oranges—grapefruit, and lemons—and the fruit picture for March is bright indeed.

At vegetable counters, stocks of cabbage, carrots, and celery will be abundant. March grocery features will be canned tomato juice, citrus juices, grapefruit segments, sweetpotatoes, pumpkin, and lower grades of peas.

Miscellaneous items stressed by the department are peanut butter, honey, and such nuts as walnuts, filberts, and pecans.

Ur, ancient city in Southern Babylonia, was the chief seat in Babylonia of the worship of the moon god Nannar or Sin, whose massive temple still stands 70 feet above the plain.

River Compact Signing Set For 8 States

COLUMBUS, March 18—Preliminary plans in effect today indicated that the signing of the eight-state Ohio river valley water sanitation compact will take place in Cincinnati late in June.

The plans were laid Tuesday in the governor's office at a conference between Hudson Biery of Cincinnati; John R. Jones, governor Herbert's secretary; Attorney General Hugh S. Jenkins; Health Department's sanitary engineering division, and Douglas Fuller of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce.

Biery, a member of the state's preliminary compact negotiating committee, insisted that "logically, Ohio should be the host" for the signing ceremonies.

Governors from New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Indiana, Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky will sign the agreement stipulating that each town on the Ohio river or a tributary should have a sewage disposal plant. The compact provides that there should be at least 45 percent treatment of all sewage.

No Depression Ahead, Claim

OBERLIN, March 18 — Inflation and its perils will be headed off before any serious damage can be done and a depression in the United States is "unlikely in the forseeable future."

That is the opinion of Emerson Schmidt, director of economic research for the United States Chamber of Commerce, who spoke at Oberlin college last night in a debate which precedes the mock Republican political convention to be held this Spring on the campus.

Miners Ready For 'Chicken'

PITTSBURGH, March 18—Time was, back during the coal strike of 1922, when miners subsisted on "Cincinnati chicken" and beans.

And, says John Vujnovich, 54, a miner for 34 years:

"We will stay out this time until we get the pension, even if it means we will have to eat Cincinnati chicken and beans again."

By way of explanation, Cincinnati chicken was the name given salt pork doled out by the union to the miners, along with the beans, during the 1922 strike.

Vujnovich, father of four, has been through all the strikes—some violent, some peaceful, some long, some short—since he started working in mines at the age of 20. He now is employed in the Midland mine of Pittsburgh Coal Co.

Archer, 16, Held After Shooting Kin With Arrow

CHICAGO, March 18—A 16-year-old Chicago boy, who wounded his half-brother in the chest with a steel-tipped arrow and then held four police squads at bay for an hour, was held in custody today at the juvenile home.

The youth, William Thomaszek, was subdued by tear gas fired through a window of his home.

His father, Joseph Thomaszek, said he had taken the boy to a physician six months for a nervous condition, but the youth had refused to return for treatment.

Using a bow and arrow, William shot his half-brother James Gurnees, 22, a postal clerk, as Gurnees opened the front door upon his return from work.

The 20-inch target arrow was deflected by the breast bone and penetrated only a half-inch. Gurnees fell wounded in the hall as Mrs. Marie Thomaszek, 45, mother of William, and two brothers ran to his aid.

The berserk boy then barricaded himself in the front room by locking the doors and setting a burglar chain on the front entrance.

When Police Sgt. Joseph Rudnick unlocked the door with a key, William fired a steel-tipped arrow part way through the door panel.

When police finally broke through front and rear doors after launching the tear gas attack they found William overcome by the fumes.

Six-Week Test Meet Scheduled

Conservation Parley Readied

The six-week Ohio conservation laboratory training camp for teachers, school administrators and other conservation workers is scheduled for June 21 to July 28.

This will mark the ninth year in which the Ohio division of conservation, the state department of education and Ohio State university have jointly sponsored the outdoor school for teachers.

The session which combines a vacation and an opportunity to acquire graduate or undergraduate college credits is directed primarily at providing instruction to elementary, secondary and college teachers in the importance of conserving and restoring natural resources covering selective studies in the field of soil, water, forests, minerals and wildlife.

THE TEACHING staff is comprised of well qualified conservation leaders and specialists who conduct field trips, and supervise independent projects with small groups of students using the outdoors as their only textbooks.

The school will be held again this year at Camp Muskingum over-looking Leesville lake in Carroll County where modern dormitory and other living facilities provide an appropriate vacationland atmosphere.

Last year the enrollment reached an all-time high with an increase of 40 percent more students than any previous year.

More than 75 percent of last year's students attended the course through scholarships provided by conservation organizations, garden and nature groups, civic groups and industrialists throughout the state. It is expected that almost the entire enrollment this year will be sponsored by such groups interested in providing teacher training to local schools.

Teachers planning to attend this year's Summer session and those organizations and individuals interested in furnishing scholarships are requested to contact the Ohio Division of Conservation, Columbus.

The cost of the five and a half week course per student will be approximately $110 covering instruction; board and lodging, the services of a registered nurse and laundry other than personal clothing.

Wreck Kills 35 Head Of Stock

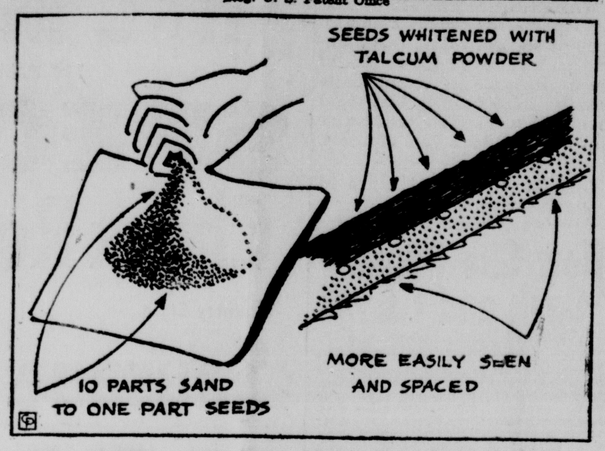

BUCYRUS, March 18—With a packers' strike and rising meat prices staring him in the face, Wooster Livestock Dealer Glenn McLaughlin today mourned the deaths of 15 calves and 20 sheep.

The beasts were killed when the double-decker stock truck transporting them turned over.

McLaughlin was consoled only by the surviving 31 calves and 21 sheep rounded up when a troup of farmers and deputy sheriffs took out over the muddy fields after them.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

Seed Planting in Freedom Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Distributed by Central Press Association

A COMPARATIVELY small quantity of seeds is required to plant the average Freedom garden. It pays, however, to get the best quality seeds.

Don't make the mistake, as one home gardener did once upon a time, of ordering a pound of turnip seed for a backyard vegetable patch, when in reality such an amount is enough to plant an acre of ground.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, tiny seeds can be handled easier when they are mixed with 10 times the quantity of sand. Unless mixed with sand in this proportion such tiny seeds are likely to be planted too thickly.

Small dark seeds, or those which are the same color as the soil, may be whitened with talcum powder before planting. When this is done the seeds are more easily seen and properly spaced, as illustrated.

In general, the procedure for seed planting is to make a shallow trench with the corner of a hoe alongside the string which marks the row.

Tear off the corner of the seed packet, hold it open with the hand, and tap the side gently with the forefinger of the same hand, letting the seeds fall out thinly as you move along the row. By this method you can control the amount of seeds dropped.

Remember, to avoid waste, one should sow seeds thinly,

How to Keep 'Em Down On the Farm

The other day Pete Swanson's nephew, Bud, allowed as how he was fed up with farm and country life ... and was going to the city where there was a lot more opportunity and excitement.

Some folks might have tried to stop him. But not Pete. He even advanced Bud carfare for the trip ... figured that when he'd had a good look around, he'd come back where he belonged.

And what happened? After seven days of big-town bustle and excitement, Bud was back behind the wheel of a tractor, with color in his cheeks again. And he'd traded the night life of the city for a quiet glass of beer with Dad.

From where I sit, that's how it goes. Try to prevent some one from getting what he thinks he wants—and he'll go on wanting it. But give him his head, and he'll settle for the sensible thing—whether it's country life, or a temperate glass of beer!

YOUNG PEOPLE SEE UN

HIGH school pupils from many states are visiting United Nations sessions at Lake Success, N. Y. They are picked for outstanding leadership and scholastic qualities. They observe the meetings with care, and give serious reports on their return to their school fellows.

An important educational procedure is this exposure of boys and girls to direct contact with world figures and the struggle for world peace. The youthful delegates see what no amount of second-hand teaching could tell them: United Nations accomplishments, for good or ill, will affect their lives. The 57 allied flags waving in the sunlight, the flesh-and-blood appearance of the representatives of those nations make peace a living issue that concerns these students.

The young people's summaries show a mature comprehension of global affairs. Their insight surprises those oldsters who have forgotten that war's burdens are carried by youth. Today's young folk see no glamor in war, look on peace as precious, think of the United Nations as the one tangible hope for mankind.

As many high school students as possible, from many sections of the country, should be spectators at meetings of the United Nations.

LAST LOSING PRESIDENT

THE last time that a President was defeated for renomination was in 1884. The victim, like President Truman, was a vice-president who had come to the White House through the death of his predecessor.

Chester A. Arthur had been put on the ticket with Garfield to appease the disgruntled New York machine. His accession to the presidency was generally viewed with dismay. Actually he proved an agreeable surprise, giving a high-minded administration. The first civil service law was signed by him.

Why was he not renominated? Chiefly because the Republicans were then split into factions. With no great issues at stake, personal popularity was decisive. Here Arthur was no match for the veteran politician, James G. Blaine. In the convention Blaine led from the start, and won on the fourth ballot, though he was defeated in the election.

Today's situation is vastly different. There are burning issues, yet, with Wallace out of the party, there is no leader to challenge the President in the convention. Whatever else may happen this Fall, 1948 is not expected to be another 1884.

This is the time of year when all geese are swans, and every rookie in the baseball training camps is heralded as another Ted Williams or Bob Feller.

We Americans don't go in for dictatorships, but here and there you find a fellow who would like to try that line just for fun.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In a too little discussed disssenting opinion, Justice Robert Jackson, with the concurrence of Justice Felix Frankfurter, laid low the administrative agencies of government most competently. It was the case of SEC v. Shenery Corporation, et al.

The case itself is of small importance. What it amounts to is that some officers and directors of the corporation bought on the open market some preferred stock of the company while a reorganization plan was pending with the SEC. No law, judicial precedent, regulation or rule of the SEC forbids the transaction.

Nevertheless, the commission ordered those who purchased this stock to sell it, but issued no similar order to others to do likewise, even though they made purchases at the same time. But the officers and directors had to obey the SEC, which holds a life-or-death power over such corporations.

These directors went into the courts for relief, but found that although they were within the law, had violated no law, had done nothing which, at the moment, was illegal or an abuse of a well-established standard of conduct, they nevertheless lost their case. They lost it on the ground that the administrative experience of the SEC had to be upheld, law or no law. It also was shown in this case that SEC had had no previous administrative experience in this particular type of matter; nevertheless, the lack of administrative experience had to be upheld! For what the court said was:

"Hence, we refuse to say that the commission, which had not previously been confronted with the problem of management trading during reorganization, was forbidden from utilizing this particular proceeding for announcing and applying a new standard of conduct."

To this, Justice Jackson replied (concurred in by Justice Frankfurter):

"The court's reasoning adds up to this: The commission must be sustained because of its accumulated experience in solving a problem with which it had never before been confronted!"

In order words, SEC and the majority of the court make their laws, apply them retroactively and produce a total anarchy. It is amazing how often the administrative agencies go off on their own in precisely this manner, ignoring the law, redefining acts of Congress, functioning by whim and fancy. Justice Jackson asks:

"If it is of no consequence that no rule of law be existent to support an administrative order, and the court of appeals is obliged to defer to administrative experience and to sustain a commission's power merely because it has been asserted and exercised, of what use is it to print a record or briefs in the case, or to hear argument"

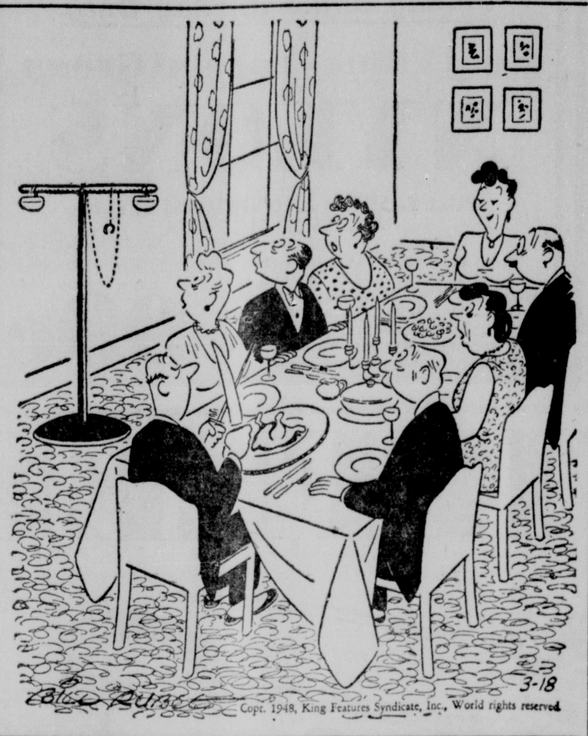

It might further be asked, why, if any agency of administration can do as it pleases, without regard to law, penalizing one group of citizens in the private interest of another—why, if this is possible, does Congress pass laws at all? Why not leave everything to the administrative experience of those who have had no experience?

It is a hopeful sign that there are at least two justices on the Supreme Court of the United States who respect the law. Perhaps in time there will be more.

The dweller in snowbound cities never really believes that elsewhere in the United States it is actually hot.

By another decade or two, according to present indications, the chief occupation of Americans will be international traveling.

LAFF-A-DAY

DIET AND HEALTH

The Toxic Goiter Patient

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THERE are few fields in which medicine has made better progress than in the treatment of toxic goiter. Evidence of the success with which this ailment can be handled today is found in the fact that, during the year 1946, deaths from this cause were reduced by 40 per cent. (Met. Life Bull., Nov., 1947.)

Toxic goiter usually has an abrupt beginning and, within a short time, most of the symptoms—rapid heart beat, loss of weight, excessive sweating—are full-blown. When the patient holds out his hand, there is a slight trembling and in some cases, there are certain mental changes. The affected person becomes irritable and difficult to get along with. In addition to the typical symptoms mentioned above, there may be attacks of diarrhea. All of these things can be present even though the thyroid gland is only slightly or moderately enlarged.

Eyeballs Protrude

This condition is also called exophthalmic goiter because the eyeballs may bulge or protrude. Another eye sign is the lagging of the lid when the patient looks downward.

If there is some question as to whether or not toxic goiter is present, a basal metabolism test should be made. In any event, this test will help to tell how severe the disorder is.

This test is carried out by having the patient breathe through a mask connected to a tank and measuring the amount of oxygen used up within a given period of time. In toxic goiter, the basal metabolism rate is increased.

Metabolic Rate

A formula has been suggested for calculating the metabolic rate without carrying out the test. This is done by taking 7/10 of the pulse rate and adding it to 9/10 of the pulse pressure and subtracting 75. The pulse pressure is the difference between the systolic blood pressure and the diastolic pressure. The systolic is the pressure when the heart contracts, and the diastolic when the heart rate lessens. Of course, this method does not give the exact metabolism, but it does give some indication of the rate.

Insofar as treatment of toxic goiter is concerned, one of the most important things is rest. In fact, many mild cases are greatly improved with rest alone. In addition, iodine, given in the proper doses, will bring about improvement.

Sufficient Improvement

It is unlikely that such treatment will result in permanent cure in moderate or severe cases, but there is usually sufficient improvement to make operation safer, a required procedure in most instances of moderate or severe toxic goiter. A drug recently introduced, known as thiouracil may also be used prior to operation to lessen the severity of the symptoms and thus prevent many of the dangers of the operative procedures.

Now and then, X-ray treatment of the thyroid gland may also be used successfully.

The exact cause of toxic goiter is not known. Should symptoms of this condition develop, immediate treatment by the physician is, of course, necessary.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. S.: I have pains in the back of my head. When I lie down I get dizzy spells. What could cause this condition?

Answer: There is a variety of causes for a disorder of this type. It might be due to some condition affecting the upper part of the spine; to a disorder of the nervous system, or to some type of infection. You are in need of a thorough study by your physician.

DISCARD WHERE IT AIDS

THERE are two principal ways in which a declarer can profitably employ an opportunity to discard something from his own hand on a winning card in the dummy. The most desirable, of course, is to get rid of a card which otherwise would be a loser. Next, and sometimes just as important, is the tossing off of a card which is a possible though not certain loser. To carelessly throw away a card which could not be a loser under any probable circumstances—that constitutes the waste of an opportunity.

West led his spade J, which drew the Q, K and A. After taking trumps out in three rounds, South took the finesse of the diamond Q, which he considered pretty well marked by the bidding, and then laid down the diamond A. Looking for something small to put on it, he selected the spade 4. Then he led to the club K, which lost to the A, whereupon the spade 10 and club Q held the declarer to exactly game.

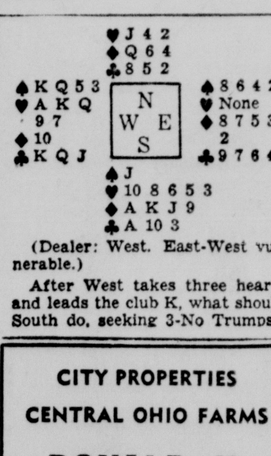

There was not too much at stake, only an extra trick. But it was so easy to get. South had no valid excuse for discarding the spade 4 on the diamond A. That card could not ever lose a trick anyway, since only the 10 could score in spades for the defense. South should have tossed the club J on the diamond top—or the K if he wanted to seem fancy. In either event, he would have made sure he would lose nothing except one trick in each black suit.

"But the king of clubs might have won a trick for me, if East had the ace," wailed South during the post mortem. Just how that could have helped him, however, he was unable to explain after the futility of seeking a club winner was clarified to him.

CHAPTER TWENTY

KIRK took Tracy to her room and put her gently on the wide soft bed.

Kit came in the room followed by Anita. The door was open and Kit saw Tony and Mike in the hall.

Kirk turned to Kit. "We were talking in the garden and she—she crumpled up without warning . . ."

"We'll take care of her. Yvette!"

Tracy's little French maid was instantly busy over her mistress with smelling salts and brandy.

Kirk stepped back from the bed. "Perhaps there's a doctor among the guests. She needs one."

When he left, Anita asked helplessly, "What's the matter with her, Yvette? Why doesn't she come out of it? She looks dreadful! Why don't somebody do something?"

But Tracy did not respond. Yvette flung a desperate look at Kit rubbing Tracy's wrists and shrugged. Anita fluttered from one side of the bed to the other, staring, doing nothing . . .

Kit was frightened. "We'd better call a doctor if there isn't one here. She doesn't respond." This was no ordinary fainting spell. People usually revived after a few minutes. But Tracy, her fair hair spread fanlike on the pillow, her black net frock crumpled, seemed to be in a coma.

Kit went to the door. Mike and Tony were still outside.

"Is Kirk back? Did he find a doctor?"

Mike said, "Here he comes with one. Dr. Mitchell . . . Phil Mitchell." He knew Phil Mitchell, a young man not long in practice.

Kit followed him back to the bed. It seemed an incredibly long time that she stood there, watching Dr. Mitchell work over Tracy—to no avail.

"We'd better get her to a hospital at once." He turned to Kit.

When he looked puzzled at her presence, she said, "I'm Miss Field's secretary. I'll get a wrap."

She hurried to the door. Outside she said to the men, "Dr. Mitchell wants to take her to a hospital at once. Call Cecil. Have the car brought to the rear entrance immediately." To Tony she added, "I don't think she'd want to alarm her guests. We'll take her down the rear stairway. Will you tell the musicians to play? Perhaps they will think she's resting up here. She'd want it that way."

Kirk picked up the inert girl. "I'll carry her down. Then Mike and I will follow in his car."

Tony said, "I'll stay and see that the party goes on. But phone me as soon as you know something. I'll ask Anita to stay, too."

Kit flew to her room for her light blue woolen coat. Stepping into the hall again she saw Kirk with Tracy, her black net frock hidden beneath the coat Yvette had hastily flung over her. Mike and Dr. Mitchell and Yvette, wild-eyed, followed.

They placed Tracy gently in the car and Kit and Dr. Mitchell sat beside her.

"Drive fast." The doctor spoke with authority. "But don't take any chances."

As they drove off, Kit heard the music again. The party wasn't over . . .

She looked anxiously at the young doctor. "Is it serious? Do you know?"

"We'll see. You've been with her lately. How has she been?"

"Tired. Terribly tired. She told me one day she felt as if she could go to sleep standing up."

"How is her appetite?"

"Fine. I see her usually when she's having breakfast and she has a larger one than I. But she's very thin . . ."

The ride seemed endless. Dr. Mitchell kept a strict check on the time and seemed disturbed. Kit glanced frequently at Tracy, hoping she would move or open her eyes.

At last they reached the hospital where experienced hands lifted her from the car and took her inside. Kit followed, leaving a weeping Yvette in the waiting room. In the corridor outside Tracy's room Mike and Kirk walked up and down. Kit joined them when she was told she could no longer remain with the patient.

"Queer," Mike said as the three of them walked back to the waiting room. Yvette sat still struggling with her tears.

"We were talking outside," Kirk mused. "All at once she slipped to the grass. She'd been perfectly all right apparently. Maybe she's been doing too much. Too much riding and tennis . . ."

Yvette looked up. "Non! Non!"

Kirk spoke to her in French. "Yvette says Tracy hasn't been well and wouldn't go to a doctor. She says that Tracy has been thirsty all the time."

Kit said, "I wonder how long we'll have to wait before we know. I hate not knowing . . ."

"I hate hospitals." Mike shuddered. "They give me the creeps. I hate the smell of them."

Kirk said, "You'd better sit down, Kit. We may have a long wait."

He spoke gently, not as if they had been close to quarreling.

Mike felt jittery. He had a headache and he didn't like the look of things. You did not associate Tracy Field with illness and hospitals. Rather you always associated the arrogant Tracy with social doings and people springing to attention at her beck and call. You thought of the nervous Tracy in motion, waving her hands, shrugging her shoulders, walking with quick grace, speaking in her lovely voice. Tracy still and helpless while her house was filled with people and music! It seemed slightly unreal. It had been smart of Kit to suggest the party go on. Tracy would praise Kit for her quick thinking.

Suddenly he remembered something Tracy had said a couple of years ago when he had had a bad case of grippe. "Illness is so deadly dull, Mike. People always stay away from you. They're afraid they'll get what you have and they always want to tell you, the ones who are sick, I mean, about their temperatures and symptoms. They go on for hours about it. I never could understand it. When my friends are ill, I send them flowers and hope I won't see them until they've forgotten they've been ill."

Kit rested her head on the back of a chair and closed her eyes, opening them each time she heard footsteps. But the energetic figures in white always passed and did not come in. She glanced at Kirk, standing beside the chintz-draped windows, his hands in the pockets of his dinner jacket, his face stern again. That he had acted quickly made her think of what Aunt Chris had said once, "Kit, no man is worth his salt unless he's a good person to have around in time of trouble and doesn't lose his head." While Tony had been helpless, Anita fluttery and excited and Mike too intoxicated to think clearly, Kirk had gone to find a doctor among guests strange to him. New U. S. Pacific Islands Necessary Despite Big Cost | Communal Life Now Enjoyed In Recently Acquired Isles

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Rear Adm. Carleton H. Wright, in charge of the Pacific islands the United States took over under a United Nations trusteeship, says they will cost a lot more—in dollars—than we can ever get out of them.

However, the admiral adds that the islands are a strategic necessity if the Pacific is to remain peaceful. He points out: "The Japs got in once, and look what happened!"

Wright observes, incidentally, that while Russian-brand Communism has made little progress in the islands, there is "true Communism" on some of the tropical atolls.

He says many island communities have genuine communal holdings of land and property and even distribution of food.

The admiral cites lack of valuable natural resources as the reason for the high cost of the islands to the United States. Most can manage merely to supply subsistence needs of natives.

● AVIATION SITUATION—The GOP congressional leadership is reported impressed with recommendations of the congressional Aviation Policy Board designed to remedy sore spots in the national air picture.

The board's call for the world's most powerful air force stole most of the headlines. However, there were other items in the report which mean a lot to air-minded Americans.

For example, the group recommended an outlay of 75 million dollars to be used in clearing traffic jams around big airports in bad weather, thus removing danger and uncertainty which have cost airlines many customers.

New electronic aids would permit landings and take-offs under severe weather conditions and allow five times as many planes to use the airways.

The 1,000 transport planes now in use jam the sky lanes whenever weather forces them to be "stacked" over airports to avoid possible collisions.

● LABOR ELECTIONS COSTLY—The National Labor Relations Board's union shop elections in the building trades industry are expected to cost the government upwards of one million dollars. There are about 2,500,000 employes to be polled and NLRB officials have figured the cost at about 45 cents per ballot.

AFL building trades unions will go along with the NLRB and participate, but they think it is a waste of the taxpayer's money. Traditionally, the building and construction trades have been closed shop areas. The unions anticipate no difficulty in winning a union shop.

The elections are made necessary by the Taft-Hartley law which bans the closed shop but allows a union shop if a majority of eligible employes vote for it. Under the union shop, the employer can hire anyone, but the employe must join the union within 30 days.

Small Hope For Spanish In ERP Plan

The United States has maintained a policy of refraining from normal relations with the Franco government, even though this country did block political and economic sanctions against Spain in the United Nations.

However, the only way Spain could participate would be through liberalizing her government. Regardless of who might be responsible for such a move, the Communists and other extreme leftists would claim credit.

This leaves the United States in a position that almost imposes the necessity of keeping Spain out of ERP.

YOUNG PEOPLE SEE UN

HIGH school pupils from many states are visiting United Nations sessions at Lake Success, N. Y. They are picked for outstanding leadership and scholastic qualities. They observe the meetings with care, and give serious reports on their return to their school fellows.

An important educational procedure is this exposure of boys and girls to direct contact with world figures and the struggle for world peace. The youthful delegates see what no amount of second-hand teaching could tell them: United Nations accomplishments, for good or ill, will affect their lives. The 57 allied flags waving in the sunlight, the flesh-and-blood appearance of the representatives of those nations make peace a living issue that concerns these students.

The young people's summaries show a mature comprehension of global affairs. Their insight surprises those oldsters who have forgotten that war's burdens are carried by youth. Today's young folk see no glamor in war, look on peace as precious, think of the United Nations as the one tangible hope for mankind.

As many high school students as possible, from many sections of the country, should be spectators at meetings of the United Nations.

LAST LOSING PRESIDENT

THE last time that a President was defeated for renomination was in 1884. The victim, like President Truman, was a vice-president who had come to the White House through the death of his predecessor.

Chester A. Arthur had been put on the ticket with Garfield to appease the disgruntled New York machine. His accession to the presidency was generally viewed with dismay. Actually he proved an agreeable surprise, giving a high-minded administration. The first civil service law was signed by him.

Why was he not renominated? Chiefly because the Republicans were then split into factions. With no great issues at stake, personal popularity was decisive. Here Arthur was no match for the veteran politician, James G. Blaine. In the convention Blaine led from the start, and won on the fourth ballot, though he was defeated in the election.

Today's situation is vastly different. There are burning issues, yet, with Wallace out of the party, there is no leader to challenge the President in the convention. Whatever else may happen this Fall, 1948 is not expected to be another 1884.

This is the time of year when all geese are swans, and every rookie in the baseball training camps is heralded as another Ted Williams or Bob Feller.

We Americans don't go in for dictatorships, but here and there you find a fellow who would like to try that line just for fun.

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

In a too little discussed disssenting opinion, Justice Robert Jackson, with the concurrence of Justice Felix Frankfurter, laid low the administrative agencies of government most competently. It was the case of SEC v. Shenery Corporation, et al.

The case itself is of small importance. What it amounts to is that some officers and directors of the corporation bought on the open market some preferred stock of the company while a reorganization plan was pending with the SEC. No law, judicial precedent, regulation or rule of the SEC forbids the transaction.

Nevertheless, the commission ordered those who purchased this stock to sell it, but issued no similar order to others to do likewise, even though they made purchases at the same time. But the officers and directors had to obey the SEC, which holds a life-or-death power over such corporations.

These directors went into the courts for relief, but found that although they were within the law, had violated no law, had done nothing which, at the moment, was illegal or an abuse of a well-established standard of conduct, they nevertheless lost their case. They lost it on the ground that the administrative experience of the SEC had to be upheld, law or no law. It also was shown in this case that SEC had had no previous administrative experience in this particular type of matter; nevertheless, the lack of administrative experience had to be upheld! For what the court said was:

"Hence, we refuse to say that the commission, which had not previously been confronted with the problem of management trading during reorganization, was forbidden from utilizing this particular proceeding for announcing and applying a new standard of conduct."

To this, Justice Jackson replied (concurred in by Justice Frankfurter):

"The court's reasoning adds up to this: The commission must be sustained because of its accumulated experience in solving a problem with which it had never before been confronted!"

In order words, SEC and the majority of the court make their laws, apply them retroactively and produce a total anarchy. It is amazing how often the administrative agencies go off on their own in precisely this manner, ignoring the law, redefining acts of Congress, functioning by whim and fancy. Justice Jackson asks:

"If it is of no consequence that no rule of law be existent to support an administrative order, and the court of appeals is obliged to defer to administrative experience and to sustain a commission's power merely because it has been asserted and exercised, of what use is it to print a record or briefs in the case, or to hear argument"

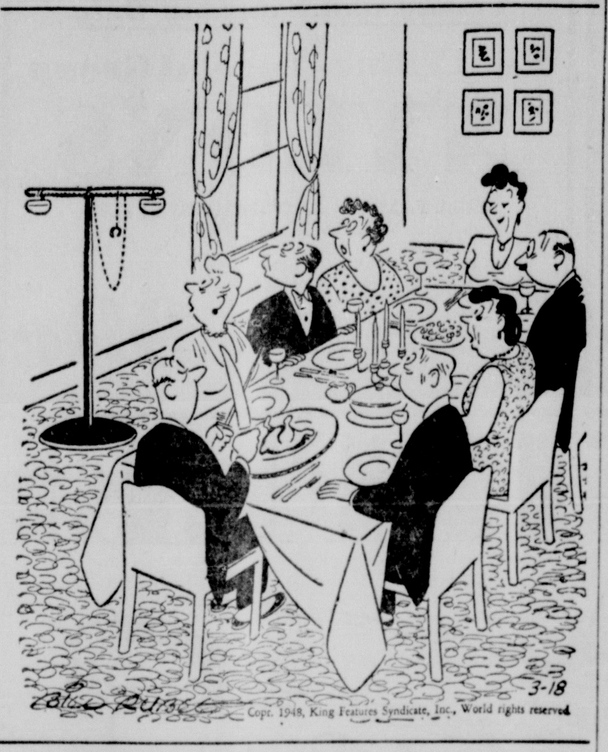

It might further be asked, why, if any agency of administration can do as it pleases, without regard to law, penalizing one group of citizens in the private interest of another—why, if this is possible, does Congress pass laws at all? Why not leave everything to the administrative experience of those who have had no experience?

It is a hopeful sign that there are at least two justices on the Supreme Court of the United States who respect the law. Perhaps in time there will be more.

The dweller in snowbound cities never really believes that elsewhere in the United States it is actually hot.

By another decade or two, according to present indications, the chief occupation of Americans will be international traveling.

DIET AND HEALTH

The Toxic Goiter Patient

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THERE are few fields in which medicine has made better progress than in the treatment of toxic goiter. Evidence of the success with which this ailment can be handled today is found in the fact that, during the year 1946, deaths from this cause were reduced by 40 per cent. (Met. Life Bull., Nov., 1947.)

Toxic goiter usually has an abrupt beginning and, within a short time, most of the symptoms—rapid heart beat, loss of weight, excessive sweating—are full-blown. When the patient holds out his hand, there is a slight trembling and in some cases, there are certain mental changes. The affected person becomes irritable and difficult to get along with. In addition to the typical symptoms mentioned above, there may be attacks of diarrhea. All of these things can be present even though the thyroid gland is only slightly or moderately enlarged.

Eyeballs Protrude

This condition is also called exophthalmic goiter because the eyeballs may bulge or protrude. Another eye sign is the lagging of the lid when the patient looks downward.

If there is some question as to whether or not toxic goiter is present, a basal metabolism test should be made. In any event, this test will help to tell how severe the disorder is.

This test is carried out by having the patient breathe through a mask connected to a tank and measuring the amount of oxygen used up within a given period of time. In toxic goiter, the basal metabolism rate is increased.

Metabolic Rate

A formula has been suggested for calculating the metabolic rate without carrying out the test. This is done by taking 7/10 of the pulse rate and adding it to 9/10 of the pulse pressure and subtracting 75. The pulse pressure is the difference between the systolic blood pressure and the diastolic pressure. The systolic is the pressure when the heart contracts, and the diastolic when the heart rate lessens. Of course, this method does not give the exact metabolism, but it does give some indication of the rate.

Insofar as treatment of toxic goiter is concerned, one of the most important things is rest. In fact, many mild cases are greatly improved with rest alone. In addition, iodine, given in the proper doses, will bring about improvement.

Sufficient Improvement

It is unlikely that such treatment will result in permanent cure in moderate or severe cases, but there is usually sufficient improvement to make operation safer, a required procedure in most instances of moderate or severe toxic goiter. A drug recently introduced, known as thiouracil may also be used prior to operation to lessen the severity of the symptoms and thus prevent many of the dangers of the operative procedures.

Now and then, X-ray treatment of the thyroid gland may also be used successfully.

The exact cause of toxic goiter is not known. Should symptoms of this condition develop, immediate treatment by the physician is, of course, necessary.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

H. S.: I have pains in the back of my head. When I lie down I get dizzy spells. What could cause this condition?

Answer: There is a variety of causes for a disorder of this type. It might be due to some condition affecting the upper part of the spine; to a disorder of the nervous system, or to some type of infection. You are in need of a thorough study by your physician.

CHAPTER TWENTY

KIRK took Tracy to her room and put her gently on the wide soft bed.

Kit came in the room followed by Anita. The door was open and Kit saw Tony and Mike in the hall.

Kirk turned to Kit. "We were talking in the garden and she—she crumpled up without warning . . ."

"We'll take care of her. Yvette!" Tracy's little French maid was instantly busy over her mistress with smelling salts and brandy.

Kirk stepped back from the bed. "Perhaps there's a doctor among the guests. She needs one."

When he left, Anita asked helplessly, "What's the matter with her, Yvette? Why doesn't she come out of it? She looks dreadful! Why don't somebody do something?"

But Tracy did not respond. Yvette flung a desperate look at Kit rubbing Tracy's wrists and shrugged. Anita fluttered from one side of the bed to the other, staring, doing nothing . . .

Kit was frightened. "We'd better call a doctor if there isn't one here. She doesn't respond." This was no ordinary fainting spell. People usually revived after a few minutes. But Tracy, her fair hair spread fanlike on the pillow, her black net frock crumpled, seemed to be in a coma.

Kit went to the door. Mike and Tony were still outside.

"Is Kirk back? Did he find a doctor?"

Mike said, "Here he comes with one. Dr. Mitchell . . . Phil Mitchell." He knew Phil Mitchell, a young man not long in practice.

Kit followed him back to the bed. It seemed an incredibly long time that she stood there, watching Dr. Mitchell work over Tracy—to no avail.

"We'd better get her to a hospital at once." He turned to Kit.

When he looked puzzled at her presence, she said, "I'm Miss Field's secretary. I'll get a wrap."

She hurried to the door. Outside she said to the men, "Dr. Mitchell wants to take her to a hospital at once. Call Cecil. Have the car brought to the rear entrance immediately." To Tony she added, "I don't think she'd want to alarm her guests. We'll take her down the rear stairway. Will you tell the musicians to play? Perhaps they will think she's resting up here. She'd want it that way."

Kirk picked up the inert girl. "I'll carry her down. Then Mike and I will follow in his car."

Tony said, "I'll stay and see that the party goes on. But phone me as soon as you know something. I'll ask Anita to stay, too."

Kit flew to her room for her light blue woolen coat. Stepping into the hall again she saw Kirk with Tracy, her black net frock hidden beneath the coat Yvette had hastily flung over her. Mike and Dr. Mitchell and Yvette, wild-eyed, followed.

They placed Tracy gently in the car and Kit and Dr. Mitchell sat beside her.

"Drive fast." The doctor spoke with authority. "But don't take any chances."

As they drove off, Kit heard the music again. The party wasn't over . . .

She looked anxiously at the young doctor. "Is it serious? Do you know?"

"We'll see. You've been with her lately. How has she been?"

"Tired. Terribly tired. She told me one day she felt as if she could go to sleep standing up."

"How is her appetite?"

"Fine. I see her usually when she's having breakfast and she has a larger one than I. But she's very thin . . ."

The ride seemed endless. Dr. Mitchell kept a strict check on the time and seemed disturbed. Kit glanced frequently at Tracy, hoping she would move or open her eyes.

At last they reached the hospital where experienced hands lifted her from the car and took her inside. Kit followed, leaving a weeping Yvette in the waiting room. In the corridor outside Tracy's room Mike and Kirk walked up and down. Kit joined them when she was told she could no longer remain with the patient.

"Queer," Mike said as the three of them walked back to the waiting room. Yvette sat still struggling with her tears.

"We were talking outside," Kirk mused. "All at once she slipped to the grass. She'd been perfectly all right apparently. Maybe she's been doing too much. Too much riding and tennis . . ."

Yvette looked up. "Non! Non!"

Kirk spoke to her in French. "Yvette says Tracy hasn't been well and wouldn't go to a doctor. She says that Tracy has been thirsty all the time."

Kit said, "I wonder how long we'll have to wait before we know. I hate not knowing . . ."

"I hate hospitals." Mike shuddered. "They give me the creeps. I hate the smell of them."

Kirk said, "You'd better sit down, Kit. We may have a long wait."

He spoke gently, not as if they had been close to quarreling.

Mike felt jittery. He had a headache and he didn't like the look of things. You did not associate Tracy Field with illness and hospitals. Rather you always associated the arrogant Tracy with social doings and people springing to attention at her beck and call. You thought of the nervous Tracy in motion, waving her hands, shrugging her shoulders, walking with quick grace, speaking in her lovely voice. Tracy still and helpless while her house was filled with people and music! It seemed slightly unreal. It had been smart of Kit to suggest the party go on. Tracy would praise Kit for her quick thinking.

Suddenly he remembered something Tracy had said a couple of years ago when he had had a bad case of grippe. "Illness is so deadly dull, Mike. People always stay away from you. They're afraid they'll get what you have and they always want to tell you, the ones who are sick, I mean, about their temperatures and symptoms. They go on for hours about it. I never could understand it. When my friends are ill, I send them flowers and hope I won't see them until they've forgotten they've been ill."

Kit rested her head on the back of a chair and closed her eyes, opening them each time she heard footsteps. But the energetic figures in white always passed and did not come in. She glanced at Kirk, standing beside the chintz-draped windows, his hands in the pockets of his dinner jacket, his face stern again. That he had acted quickly made her think of what Aunt Chris had said once, "Kit, no man is worth his salt unless he's a good person to have around in time of trouble and doesn't lose his head." While Tony had been helpless, Anita fluttery and excited and Mike too intoxicated to think clearly, Kirk had gone to find a doctor among guests strange to him. It had been Kirk who had carried Tracy down the narrow back stairs.

DISCARD WHERE IT AIDS

THERE are two principal ways in which a declarer can profitably employ an opportunity to discard something from his own hand on a winning card in the dummy. The most desirable, of course, is to get rid of a card which otherwise would be a loser. Next, and sometimes just as important, is the tossing off of a card which is a possible though not certain loser. To carelessly throw away a card which could not be a loser under any probable circumstances—that constitutes the waste of an opportunity.

West led his spade J, which drew the Q, K and A. After taking trumps out in three rounds, South took the finesse of the diamond Q, which he considered pretty well marked by the bidding, and then laid down the diamond A. Looking for something small to put on it, he selected the spade 4. Then he led to the club K, which lost to the A, whereupon the spade 10 and club Q held the declarer to exactly game.

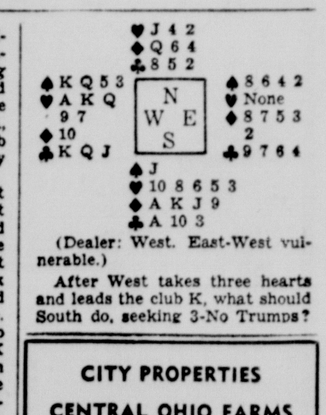

There was not too much at stake, only an extra trick. But it was so easy to get. South had no valid excuse for discarding the spade 4 on the diamond A. That card could not ever lose a trick anyway, since only the 10 could score in spades for the defense. South should have tossed the club J on the diamond top—or the K if he wanted to seem fancy. In either event, he would have made sure he would lose nothing except one trick in each black suit.

"But the king of clubs might have won a trick for me, if East had the ace," wailed South during the post mortem. Just how that could have helped him, however, he was unable to explain after the futility of seeking a club winner was clarified to him.

Congregation Of St. Philip's Church Hold Supper And Program

Parish House Site Of Meet

St. Patrick appointments including shamrocks, lighted green tapers and vases of pussy willows placed on the damask covered tables lent a festive air to the cooperative supper Wednesday evening when the congregation of St. Philip's Episcopal church gathered in the parish house for a special Lenten meeting.

Miss Margaret Mattinson served as general chairman and was assisted by various members of the church.

Girls' sextet from Circleville high school, under the direction of Mrs. Victor Oesterling, sang, "Cradle Song" by Blake. In the group are Lorrain Pritchard, Jeannen Bell, Lucille Stambaugh, Ruth Troutman, Beverly Reid and Rosemary Barthelmas. They were accompanied at the piano by Sue Brown who also accompanied Miss Stambaugh for her solo.

The Rev. Robert Leake, rector of St. Albins Episcopal church in Bexley, presented Mrs. Howard P. Stallman who also is from Bexley and treasurer of the thank offering diocese of Southern Ohio. She spoke on the work accomplished through the thank offering fund. Highlights of her address were illustrated by pictures.

The Rev. C. W. Kong, a Chinese clergyman, and one of eight pastors from China visiting the United States, was the next person to address the group. He told the congregation preceding the war he was pastor of a parish with more than 1,600 members which now has dwindled down to a mere 600 due to the war.

Rev. Mr. Kong displayed various pieces of Chinese currency and remarked "an American dollar goes a long way in China." He told of inflation in China and explained the almost worthless value of large denominations of money.

At the close of the interesting address on China, its people and present conditions, members of Women's Auxiliary of the church presented him with $10.

Recalling Names Not Required

Holy Land Goes Unidentified

By KENNETH DIXON

JERUSALEM, March 18—For a man who always is embarrassed by his inability to remember people's names, Palestine is perfect today.

Unfortunately, however, that perfection has a grim background.

The point is that if you're a newsman interviewing people involved in illegal enterprises, they must have no names, or you must forget their names, or you must use phoney names.

From a purely technical point of view, the armed forces of partitioned Palestine's Jewry remain illegal today although the British were happy enough to recognize them during the war.

They remain illegal although obviously a national army and adequate police force can not be developed overnight after the day the British hand over the Palestine mandate.

IT IS EQUALLY obvious that a people intent on self-preservation will continue to protect itself as best it can in critical times, as well as continuing to prepare for future crises.

Palestinians have done exactly that, and it has been my job to see how well they are doing it and report same.

Chiefly I have worked with the Haganah, Palestine Jewry's quasi-official army whose name means "defense" in Hebrew. Many years old and often officially applauded by the British, Haganah comprises the bulk of Palestine's Jewish protection.

More than that, it also has a long history of protecting neighboring Arab communities and even British troops who were seeking to disarm it.

In addition, I have worked with the two dissident or terrorist organizations, the Irgun Zvai Leumi (better known simply as the Irgun) and the Stern Gang, both also Jewish.

Finally, I have spent as much time as possible beyond the partition barricades and across the Palestine no-man's-land, talking with the Arab military men who feel they are faced with the same problem—albeit somewhat different in the solution it seeks to achieve.

All of which brings us back to the question of names.

DEALING WITH the Haganah has been the most simple of all, since its long record of serving in His Majesty's forces has given it an occasional semi-accepted status in the eyes of British soldiers on the spot. Thus they need not be quite so fearful of betrayal.

Even so, their operations remain illegal—so you do not ask names when you are introduced to Haganah officers and men.

After a while, if they trust you, they tell you their names, but you don't have to remember them because the chances are that when you next encounter them you will be introduced anew, and you will be expected not to mention your previous meeting.

With the Irgun and Stern Gang, the need for secrecy is far greater.

Although there is less friction between them and Haganah than there was a year ago, their terrorist acts still are disapproved—and quite often effectively foiled—by Haganah men.

Also, they are not popular with the majority of Palestinians with whom I have talked.

Add to that the outright enmity of the British troops for both gangs, plus the hatred of the Arabs, and you see why concealing their identity is more than somewhat important.

Recalling Names Not Required

Holy Land Goes Unidentified

By KENNETH DIXON

JERUSALEM, March 18—For a man who always is embarrassed by his inability to remember people's names, Palestine is perfect today.

Unfortunately, however, that perfection has a grim background.

The point is that if you're a newsman interviewing people involved in illegal enterprises, they must have no names, or you must forget their names, or you must use phoney names.

From a purely technical point of view, the armed forces of partitioned Palestine's Jewry remain illegal today although the British were happy enough to recognize them during the war.

They remain illegal although obviously a national army and adequate police force can not be developed overnight after the day the British hand over the Palestine mandate.

IT IS EQUALLY obvious that a people intent on self-preservation will continue to protect itself as best it can in critical times, as well as continuing to prepare for future crises.

Palestinians have done exactly that, and it has been my job to see how well they are doing it and report same.

Chiefly I have worked with the Haganah, Palestine Jewry's quasi-official army whose name means "defense" in Hebrew. Many years old and often officially applauded by the British, Haganah comprises the bulk of Palestine's Jewish protection.

More than that, it also has a long history of protecting neighboring Arab communities and even British troops who were seeking to disarm it.

In addition, I have worked with the two dissident or terrorist organizations, the Irgun Zvai Leumi (better known simply as the Irgun) and the Stern Gang, both also Jewish.

Finally, I have spent as much time as possible beyond the partition barricades and across the Palestine no-man's-land, talking with the Arab military men who feel they are faced with the same problem—albeit somewhat different in the solution it seeks to achieve.

All of which brings us back to the question of names.

DEALING WITH the Haganah has been the most simple of all, since its long record of serving in His Majesty's forces has given it an occasional semi-accepted status in the eyes of British soldiers on the spot. Thus they need not be quite so fearful of betrayal.

Even so, their operations remain illegal—so you do not ask names when you are introduced to Haganah officers and men.

After a while, if they trust you, they tell you their names, but you don't have to remember them because the chances are that when you next encounter them you will be introduced anew, and you will be expected not to mention your previous meeting.

With the Irgun and Stern Gang, the need for secrecy is far greater.

Although there is less friction between them and Haganah than there was a year ago, their terrorist acts still are disapproved—and quite often effectively foiled—by Haganah men.

Also, they are not popular with the majority of Palestinians with whom I have talked.

Add to that the outright enmity of the British troops for both gangs, plus the hatred of the Arabs, and you see why concealing their identity is more than somewhat important.

Fertilizer Gives Barley Top Yields

Quality Hiked, Survey Shows

Fertilizing barley with the plant food it needs is a profitable investment, yield records from several midwestern agricultural colleges reveal.

As many as 20 more bushels of barley on some soils in favorable years have come from the use of fertilizer, according to a statement issued here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

How big the increases are depends on how fertile the soil is at the start and how favorable conditions are during the growing season.

Adding needed plant food boosted barley yields in Iowa by 15 bushels per acre. Experiments in Michigan showed 16 bushels increase.

IN WISCONSIN fertilizer boosted yield an average of 14 bushels per acre. In South Dakota nitrogen and phosphate boosted barley yields by 15 bushels.

Top yields most generally give top quality, too, says the statement. And when this extra quality is combined with proper seed and careful threshing, farmers can get a premium price for the barley as malting barley.

The right kind and amount of fertilizer to use depends on the kind of soil you have and the way you have handled it in the past.

You can find the kind of fertilizer needed for your crops by consulting your county agricultural agent, state agronomist, and by checking with your neighbors who have used fertilizer on barley.

Man, 36, Held In Shooting

AKRON, March 18—A 36-year-old Akron rubber worker was charged with first-degree murder today in the fatal shooting of Richard I. Williams, 35, Akron city bus driver.

The accused, Harsper F. Harris, walked into police headquarters yesterday, accompanied by his lawyer, and declared he shot and killed Williams and wounded Williams' companion, Walter R. Rennie, also a bus driver.

Williams was shot before the eyes of seven passengers who were forced to duck behind seats to avoid the gunfire. Harris claimed Williams struck him first and Rennie hit him with a blackjack. Witnesses, however, said Rennie leaped into the fray only after Harris pulled a knife.

$25,000 Damage Action To Open Monday In Common Pleas Court

Names of 25 prospective jurors have been drawn for a $25,000 damage suit trial to begin at 9:30 a. m. Monday in Pickaway County common pleas court as the result of an accident Jan. 22, 1944, on U. S. Route 22, near New Holland.

The hearing will be the first jury trial in Pickaway County during the current calendar year. Common Pleas Judge William Radcliff will preside.

In the action Pete Seyfang of New Holland has named McKinley Kirk of Washington C. H., and William Helsel as co-defendants in his move to gain restitution for reported injuries and hospital bills.

In his peition, Seyfang stated he was struck by a truck operated by the two defendants while walking along the road. His claim is based on six points of alleged negligence on the part of Kirk and Helsel.

CLAIMED in the petition is failure to keep the vehicle under control, driving the truck on the road berm, failure to see Seyfang, failure to stop or swerve to miss the plaintiff, traveling at 30 miles per hour and failure to apply brakes to check the speed of the truck.

Among the injuries listed in Seyfang's petition were brain concussion, crushed back, spinal cord injury, internal injuries and other fractures and bruises.

His claim states he is permanently injured and is still under physicians's care.

Final Milk Meet Due In Coliseum

Circus Act Party Of Friday Card

Last in a series of five Ohio milk improvement meetings will be held at 8 p. m. Friday at the Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum highlighted by a Mills Brothers Circus show and an educational program on efficient milk production.

L. A. Best, county agriculture extension agent, said Friday night's program would be built around "Marketing Milk Efficiently."

The series of meetings have been sponsored by the Committee on Ohio Dairy Products with the cooperation of the Ohio State university agriculture extension service and Pickaway County extension office.

PERRY ELLSWORTH, Ohio State university extension specialist, will give an illustrated lecture on "Quality Milk," and Best will talk on four steps to efficient milk production.

His outline states: First step is to like cows; second, keep cows with ability to produce a large volume of milk; third, feeding practices; and last, management of the herd.

TED GALLUP, one-time Streater, Ill., farm boy, and his present charge, Big Burma, Mills Bros. Circus trick elephant, above, will play leading parts in the Ohio milk improvement program at 8 p. m. Friday in the Pickaway Fairgrounds Coliseum.

County Business Drops, Sales Tax Take Indicates

Although total sales tax collections this year in Pickaway County are nearly $5,000 higher than reported for the corresponding period in 1947, volume of business for the week ending March 6 marked a downward trend after two weeks of successive climbing.

A total $3,482.31 was collected for the week ending March 6. This figure is $748.53 higher than the same period last year, but $796.49 lower than last week's collections, State Treasure Don H. Ebright's report shows.

In total collections to date, the county's financial report marks an increase of $4,783.82 over the same period of 1947. This year's intake so far, Ebright says, is $32,327.51.

For the state, sales tax collections through March 6, totalled $2.5 million more than at the same time last year. The treasurer said recepts through the first week of March amounted to $18,400,000 as compared to the $15,900,000 at the same time in 1947.

TOTAL STATE collection for the week ending March 6, totaled $2,240,000 in comparison to $1,870,000 in the same week last year.

These figures indicate that while Pickaway County business slumped during the first of March, the overall state picture reveals that total business volume still is above last year's mark both in total collections and in weekly revenue intake.

A generation ago, nearly 30c of every dollar spent on food was used to cover the grocer's cost of doing business, including wages, rent, transportation and so forth, plus a small profit. This 30c was called markup. Today, at Kroger, the markup is only about 15c per dollar sale while net profit is less than 2c per dollar sale. Kroger has marked down the markup. Marking Down the Markup

A generation ago, nearly 30c of every dollar spent on food was used to cover the grocer's cost of doing business, including wages, rent, transportation and so forth, plus a small profit. This 30c was called markup. Today, at Kroger, the markup is only about 15c per dollar sale while net profit is less than 2c per dollar sale. Kroger has marked down the markup. You buy at closer to cost.

DID YOU KNOW?

DAVID RICE ATCHISON WAS PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES
. . . and he slept through his term of office . . .
The inauguration day of Zachary Taylor as President fell on Sunday, March 4th, 1849. President Polk's term expired at the same time. However, Taylor did not take the oath of office until Monday, March 5th. Thus, David Rice Atchison, as President pro tempore of the Senate, became chief magistrate of the nation between the time of Polk's retirement and Taylor's inauguration . . . and he spent his term in restful slumber.

Big Dividends Come To Man And Vitamins

NEWARK, N. J., March 18—A boyhood interest in biology, which later developed into a study of vitamins, has paid off big dividends for Morton Edell, president of the Vitamin Corporation of America.

Starting out with an idea, he has built up a three million dollar organization in the last seven years.

Not content, however, with merely guiding the destiny of his organization, Edell has been spreading the gospel of vitamins to medical authorities and laymen.

At a recent lecture at the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, he told his audience of an experiment begun eight years ago with vitamins in London, Ont. He said the experiment promised to have a tremendous effect on the healing of damaged hearts.

Edell said:

"It was discovered during a clinical study of over 3,000 hearts that the use of Vitamin 'E' portended spectacular results.

"Among the findings were that the 'E' vitamin increases the supply of oxygen for the heart, strengthens the wall muscles and dissolves blood-clotting of the heart.

Mannerheim Said On Peace Tour

STOCKHOLM, March 18 — Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustav von Mannerheim, ageing and ill first president ot the Finnish republic, was reported today to have left his homeland in an attempt to awaken the world to the threat of Communist domination in Finland.

The 83-year-old Mannerheim sailed aboard a ship last night from the port of Turku for Stockholm.

The field marshal undertook his journey ostensibly because of his failing health. It was considered significant, however, that he chose this time to make the trip.

A Finnish delegation leaves this weekend for Moscow to begin talks with the Russians about a mutual assistance pact proposed by the Russians.

Socialist Tops Milwaukee Poll

MILWAUKEE, March 18 — A member of Milwaukee's dominant Socialist Party and an attorney were the winners today of mayoralty nominations in the city's Spring primary election.

Frank Zeidler, the Socialist, and Attorney Henry Reuss were nominated by the voters Tuesday over 13 other candidates, including the ex-Ziegfeld Follies beauty, Mrs. Ruth Froemming.

Final returns from Milwaukee's 460 precincts gave the 35-year-old Zeidler top place in the race with 49,818 votes. He is a brother of Former Mayor Carl Zeidler, who was lost at sea while serving with the Merchant Marine in World War II.

Mrs. Froemming, who ran on a platform of "brains have no sex," finished in 11th place with 1,307 votes. Her campaign for a "merrier and more modern Milwaukee" attracted wide attention.

Training Camp News Briefs

By International News Service

Howie Pollet, slim St. Louis Cardinal left-hander, was still very much a question mark in Redbird 1948 pennant plans today following a three-inning clubbing from the Detroit Tigers. The Cards lost, 6 to 2.

The southpaw, operated on to remove bone-chips following a poor 1947 season, was shelled for four runs and eight hits.

Another pennant contender, this time the World Champion New York Yankees, edged the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 7, on Johnny Lindell's ninth-inning single, his third hit of the game.

The Reds sought their second victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today after losing to the Yankees yesterday.

Cincinnati came from behind twice to tie the score although held to five hits by the Yanks. They scored five times in the sixth on a three-run homer by rookie shortstop Virgil Stallcup and a two-run single by Ted Kluszewski.

• • •

JOHNNY Vander Meer, opening Redleg hurler, was knocked out in the first inning in a baseline collision with a former teammate, Lonnie Frey, who is having a fling with the Yanks. Johnny left the field under his own power but was not allowed to remain in the game.

Eddie Erautt, Ken Raffensberger and Walker Cress worked on the mound for the Reds after Vandy left, and they were touched for a total of 11 hits.

The Washington Senators continued American League dominance over National League opposition by licking the Philadelphia Phillies 11 to 7. Gil Coan, young Senator outfielder, featured a seven-run Washington second-inning with a four-run homer.

Al Gerhauser, St. Louis Brown lefty obtained from the Montreal Royals in the Winter draft, became the first major league hurler to go the distance by pitching a three-hit, 13-to-1 victory against the Chicago White Sox.

California rains washed out scheduled games involving the Cleveland Indians and the New York Giants.

The Champion Brooklyn Dodgers remained undefeated in their games with their farm team, the Montreal Royals. The Brooks walloped the Royals, 14 to 0.

Bomar Ousted From Bowling

DETROIT, March 18—In an action unprecedented in its 16-year history, the Bowling Proprietor's Association of America today suspended Buddy Bomar, former national match game champion, from all sponsored activities for a six-month period.

The association also fined the 1947 "Bowler of the Year" $500 for alleged contractual violations in a recently-scheduled match between the E and B team of Detroit and Kathryn's of Chicago for the world's five-man title.

SCO Loop Chiefs Lay Plans For Spring Sports

The annual Spring meeting of South Central Ohio League coaches and athletic advisors met in the home of the league championship Hillsboro Indians Wednesday night.

It was agreed at the meet that there would be a league championship awarded in four sports the next year—baseball, track, football and basketball.

Spring sports discussed were:

Baseball — Greenfield, Washington, Wilmington and Circleville to participate, with plans suggested to have each team play the other twice during the season.

Golf—Washington and Circleville—no award given.

Track — Circleville, Wilmington, Washington and Hillsboro, championship to be decided at the South Central Ohio league track meet, tentative plans placing the date the first or second week in May in Wilmington.

Schedules for the sports will be set up between the coaches within the next month.

Closing the business, J. Wray Henry, principal of Circleville high school, turned over the secretarial duties for the league to George B. Redfern, principal of Wilmington high school.

Pilots Say Lad's Work Outstanding

Eccard Makes Second String

Jack Young, Circleville high school cager, was awarded to honors for his 1947-46 performance in the South Central Ohio Basketball League Wednesday night when he was named to the first string of the All-SCO honor basketball squad.

Young, a junior at CHS, was found to be one of the five most outstanding players the past basketball season by a judging committee composed of the coaches from the five league schools — Wilmington, Greenfield, Washington, Hillsboro and Circleville.

The list of the first five players in league competition, irrespective of position, follows as named:

J. L. Davis, Hillsboro.
Bill Jenike, Hillsboro.
Robert Cordes, Greenfield.
Robert Graig, Washington.
Jack Young, Circleville.

BOB ECCARD, running mat at the forward position during the past season to Young, was given recognition for his work when the coaches chose him to the second string honor team.

The list of the second team is composed of six lads, since the last four named were tied

Bob Eccard, Circleville.
Owen Lyle, Hillsboro.
Dick O'Brian, Washington.
John Rhude, Hillsboro.
Charles Schmidt, Wilmington
Bill Campbell, Washington.

In addition to having men on the first two honor squads, two other Circleville players were voted into the honorable mention list.

Robert Shaw, Circleville center, and Paul Smallwood, guard for Tigers, received positions on the list.

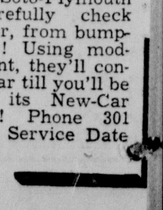

At the Wednesday night meet Hillsboro was proclaimed the varsity league champs, while the Circleville reserve team was acknowledged the championship reserve team in the league.

Baksi Replaced By Savold

NEW YORK, March 18—One man's meat is another's poison they say, but as far as Heavyweight Contender Joe Baksi was concerned today, they can forget the meat. What he's willing to do without is the poison.

Twenty-four hours ago, for instance, he was all set for a return to circulation via a meeting with Gino Buonvino of Italy at the Garden tomorrow night. Now he's to sit that one out with a sprained ankle, while Gino tangles with the veteran Lee Savold.

Former King Michael of Romania pulled a twist on the Pat and Mike jokes, because King Mike is not standing pat on his abdication. He claims that he was jockeyed out of power by forces that were not representative of the people of his country. . .and as far as he's concerned he is still King of Romania. Of course, getting the throne back may be tougher than inspecting a crocodile's tonsils, but Mike is over here holding pow-wows with Romanian leaders in exile. He seems like a pretty nice young fellow and I sort of hope he does get his job back. There are so few openings for unemployed kings these days.

Training Camp News Briefs

By International News Service

Howie Pollet, slim St. Louis Cardinal left-hander, was still very much a question mark in Redbird 1948 pennant plans today following a three-inning clubbing from the Detroit Tigers. The Cards lost, 6 to 2.

The southpaw, operated on to remove bone-chips following a poor 1947 season, was shelled for four runs and eight hits.

Another pennant contender, this time the World Champion New York Yankees, edged the Cincinnati Reds, 8 to 7, on Johnny Lindell's ninth-inning single, his third hit of the game.

The Reds sought their second victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today after losing to the Yankees yesterday.

Cincinnati came from behind twice to tie the score although held to five hits by the Yanks. They scored five times in the sixth on a three-run homer by rookie shortstop Virgil Stallcup and a two-run single by Ted Kluszewski.

• • •

JOHNNY Vander Meer, opening Redleg hurler, was knocked out in the first inning in a baseline collision with a former teammate, Lonnie Frey, who is having a fling with the Yanks. Johnny left the field under his own power but was not allowed to remain in the game.

Eddie Erautt, Ken Raffensberger and Walker Cress worked on the mound for the Reds after Vandy left, and they were touched for a total of 11 hits.

The Washington Senators continued American League dominance over National League opposition by licking the Philadelphia Phillies 11 to 7. Gil Coan, young Senator outfielder, featured a seven-run Washington second-inning with a four-run homer.

Al Gerhauser, St. Louis Brown lefty obtained from the Montreal Royals in the Winter draft, became the first major league hurler to go the distance by pitching a three-hit, 13-to-1 victory against the Chicago White Sox.

California rains washed out scheduled games involving the Cleveland Indians and the New York Giants.

The Champion Brooklyn Dodgers remained undefeated in their games with their farm team, the Montreal Royals. The Brooks walloped the Royals, 14 to 0.

Bomar Ousted From Bowling

DETROIT, March 18—In an action unprecedented in its 16-year history, the Bowling Proprietor's Association of America today suspended Buddy Bomar, former national match game champion, from all sponsored activities for a six-month period.

The association also fined the 1947 "Bowler of the Year" $500 for alleged contractual violations in a recently-scheduled match between the E and B team of Detroit and Kathryn's of Chicago for the world's five-man title.

SCO Loop Chiefs Lay Plans For Spring Sports

The annual Spring meeting of South Central Ohio League coaches and athletic advisors met in the home of the league championship Hillsboro Indians Wednesday night.

It was agreed at the meet that there would be a league championship awarded in four sports the next year—baseball, track, football and basketball.

Spring sports discussed were:

Baseball — Greenfield, Washington, Wilmington and Circleville to participate, with plans suggested to have each team play the other twice during the season.

Golf—Washington and Circleville—no award given.

Track — Circleville, Wilmington, Washington and Hillsboro, championship to be decided at the South Central Ohio league track meet, tentative plans placing the date the first or second week in May in Wilmington.

Schedules for the sports will be set up between the coaches within the next month.

Closing the business, J. Wray Henry, principal of Circleville high school, turned over the secretarial duties for the league to George B. Redfern, principal of Wilmington high school.

Pilots Say Lad's Work Outstanding

Eccard Makes Second String

Jack Young, Circleville high school cager, was awarded to honors for his 1947-46 performance in the South Central Ohio Basketball League Wednesday night when he was named to the first string of the All-SCO honor basketball squad.

Young, a junior at CHS, was found to be one of the five most outstanding players the past basketball season by a judging committee composed of the coaches from the five league schools — Wilmington, Greenfield, Washington, Hillsboro and Circleville.

The list of the first five players in league competition, irrespective of position, follows as named:

J. L. Davis, Hillsboro.
Bill Jenike, Hillsboro.
Robert Cordes, Greenfield.
Robert Graig, Washington.
Jack Young, Circleville.

BOB ECCARD, running mate at the forward position during the past season to Young, was given recognition for his work when the coaches chose him to the second string honor team.

The list of the second team is composed of six lads, since the last four named were tied.

Bob Eccard, Circleville.
Owen Lyle, Hillsboro.
Dick O'Brian, Washington.
John Rhude, Hillsboro.
Charles Schmidt, Wilmington
Bill Campbell, Washington.

In addition to having men on the first two honor squads, two other Circleville players were voted into the honorable mention list.

Robert Shaw, Circleville center, and Paul Smallwood, guard for Tigers, received positions on the list.

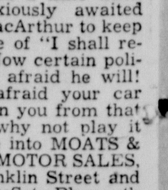

At the Wednesday night meet Hillsboro was proclaimed the varsity league champs, while the Circleville reserve team was acknowledged the championship reserve team in the league.

Baksi Replaced By Savold

NEW YORK, March 18—One man's meat is another's poison they say, but as far as Heavyweight Contender Joe Baksi was concerned today, they can forget the meat. What he's willing to do without is the poison.

Twenty-four hours ago, for instance, he was all set for a return to circulation via a meeting with Gino Buonvino of Italy at the Garden tomorrow night. Now he's to sit that one out with a sprained ankle, while Gino tangles with the veteran Lee Savold.

Former King Michael of Romania pulled a twist on the Pat and Mike jokes, because King Mike is not standing pat on his abdication. He claims that he was jockeyed out of power by forces that were not representative of the people of his country. . .and as far as he's concerned he is still King of Romania. Of course, getting the throne back may be tougher than inspecting a crocodile's tonsils, but Mike is over here holding pow-wows with Romanian leaders in exile. He seems like a pretty nice young fellow and I sort of hope he does get his job back. There are so few openings for unemployed kings these days.

First Livestock Show In Coliseum Set For April 1, 2

60 Polled Herefords Expected

Sale Included In Program

The Pickaway County Fairgrounds Coliseum will house its first livestock show, April 1 and 2, when the Buckeye Polled Hereford Association, Inc., holds its annual Spring show and sale here.

Buyers throughout the state are expected to attend the meet to take advantage of seeing some of the best bloodlines in five states. At least 60 head will be on show, officials reported.

Bulls and females from Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana and Pennsylvania will be represented from 24 outstanding herds offering pedigree blood lines.

Guy H. Finley of McConnelsville, secretary of the Hereford association, said Thursday the show and sale will include 23 bulls and 37 females.

COLONEL Earl Gartin, recognized as one of Ohio's leading auctioneers, has been selected to assist in selling the beef and breeder stock.

Prominent lines to be offered for sale at the Coliseum will include Domestic Mischief, Worthmore, Rollo Domino, and Prince Domino.

Iva Bope and Sons of Rushville are owners of Mr. Worthmore and claim him to be straight polled Worthmore and Hazford breeding now ready for service.

Representing the only Pennsylvania herd is R. G. Parkinson of Waynesburg. The seller is offering a top son of Penn's Domino, and grandson of M. P. Domino, 15th famous Fox Run sire.

The Windy Hill Farms of South Shore, Ky., will place a bull and four heifers featuring the get and service of Real Prince Domino. These animals, the sellers claim, have outstanding show records.

HOWARD E. STROH of Syracuse, Ind. will sell a bull of Domino and Mischief bloodlines, sired by CMR Rollo Domino, 3rd. Forrest Frye Mt. Vernon will consign P. F. Pride Aster, bred of Robert Siler of Duncan Falls. Their product is described as a top calf of prominent bloodlines.

Finley said there is a promising buy in every offer this year at the sale. Choice consignments are offered throughout the show—"It should be one of the best shows we've had."

Birds do not fly at great altitudes when migrating as is popularly believed. Most travel at less than 3,000 feet above the earth, and it is unusual to find them above 5,000 feet. Above the sea, birds often fly so low that they barely clear the waves.

First Livestock Show In Coliseum Set For April 1, 2

60 Polled Herefords Expected

Sale Included In Program

The Pickaway County Fairgrounds Coliseum will house its first livestock show, April 1 and 2, when the Buckeye Polled Hereford Association, Inc., holds its annual Spring show and sale here.

Buyers throughout the state are expected to attend the meet to take advantage of seeing some of the best bloodlines in five states. At least 60 head will be on show, officials reported.

Bulls and females from Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Indiana and Pennsylvania will be represented from 24 outstanding herds offering pedigree blood lines.

Guy H. Finley of McConnelsville, secretary of the Hereford association, said Thursday the show and sale will include 23 bulls and 37 females.

COLONEL Earl Gartin, recognized as one of Ohio's leading auctioneers, has been selected to assist in selling the beef and breeder stock.

Prominent lines to be offered for sale at the Coliseum will include Domestic Mischief, Worthmore, Rollo Domino, and Prince Domino.

Iva Bope and Sons of Rushville are owners of Mr. Worthmore and claim him to be straight polled Worthmore and Hazford breeding now ready for service.

Representing the only Pennsylvania herd is R. G. Parkinson of Waynesburg. The seller is offering a top son of Penn's Domino, and grandson of M. P. Domino, 15th famous Fox Run sire.

The Windy Hill Farms of South Shore, Ky., will place a bull and four heifers featuring the get and service of Real Prince Domino. These animals, the sellers claim, have outstanding show records.

HOWARD E. STROH of Syracuse, Ind., will sell a bull of Domino and Mischief bloodlines, sired by CMR Rollo Domino, 3rd. Forrest Frye Mt. Vernon will consign P. F. Pride Aster, bred of Robert Siler of Duncan Falls. Their product is described as a top calf of prominent bloodlines.

Finley said there is a promising buy in every offer this year at the sale. Choice consignments are offered throughout the show—"It should be one of the best shows we've had."

Birds do not fly at great altitudes when migrating as is popularly believed. Most travel at less than 3,000 feet above the earth, and it is unusual to find them above 5,000 feet. Above the sea, birds often fly so low that they barely clear the waves.
